

A product of self realization

Frakush Nakush

THE PREAMBLE

Trevor Mohlala

Xelon press

Nothing
Something
Everything

Xelon press, © copyright reserved

Unauthorized duplication and distribution of this work without prior arrangement with the owner of the work is a criminal offence and shall be dealt with by law.

2019 Xelon press

ISBN 978-0-620-84224-2

Jeppes Reef, Mpumalanga, South Africa

This book is written for the author of this work, read and interpret it as you will and it must not be taken as instruction for other people to realize themselves. The journey to liberation is as unique as there are beings in the universal system.

Table of content

| Chapter | Page |
|--------------------------------------|-------------|
| Introduction | 4 |
| Nothing | 8 |
| The past | 13 |
| • Working the past | 17 |
| • Discovering the past | 21 |
| • Supporting the past | 24 |
| • Balancing the past | 27 |
| • Realising the past | 31 |
| The future | 36 |
| • Working the future | 40 |
| • Discovering the future | 44 |
| • Supporting the future | 48 |
| • Balancing the future | 52 |
| • Realising the future | 56 |
| The present | 61 |
| • Working the present | 65 |
| • Discovering the present | 68 |
| • Supporting the present | 72 |
| • Balancing the present | 76 |
| • Realising the present | 80 |
| Manifestation | 85 |
| • Manifestation of one with another | 89 |
| • Manifestation of one with everyone | 92 |

Introduction

Writing is one of the most challenging things I find myself doing because I need to read, however, I find it inefficient in effectively sharing the emptiness of my thoughts. How will I ever succeed in sharing nothing when everyone concerns themselves about everything? Being a part of everything leaves us with longing that leads us to many different parts and for as long as we can differentiate between this path and another we are still in longing. Everything leaves me with a feeling, an experience that nothing can explain, so I ask myself, why do I write? Of the many answers I get, one of them is that I am a man and men has this idea about capturing the so called 'special moments'. Imagine trying to capture everything and save it in a memory of something or someone because nothing has the memory of everything. It's that much hectic because I find it very much challenging and interesting to experience everything, something and nothing filled with the hope of everything, upset when I can only remember something and feel empty when I remember nothing. I start to feel like it's better to remember something than nothing because everything cannot fit in anything to be stored. My goal is not to write about everything but to write everything as much as I do not desire to write about nothing but write nothing. This will remain my goal in this life and the next because I just passed the point of writing about something to writing something. This reveals to me that progress can be achieved for as long as I know that everything is perfect and as a part of everything I can work with the perfect state of everything. Imagine trying to perfect something that is already perfect, it will either mean that I do not know and in this case I can still learn and get to know or I am ignorant, another perfect state is expressed in everything.

As a part of everything, I will simply write that part because I know it much better than the many other things forming everything. Writing a part of everything is also challenging to a point where everyday words shy away, more like the words are saying, 'that is a bit too much to be expressed through me'. I do imagine that words communicate and that is good because they do. All I mean is that a part of everything that does not write itself will have others write about it and the challenge with this is inaccuracy. Like writings talking about parts of everything as everything or talking about a part of everything as nothing. Either way this is also the perfection of everything. Imagine someone who is killed before their time, as hurting as it might be, everything will not die from this unfortunate killing but a part of it. When something happens to a part of everything, everything learns and learning contributes progress to everything. Why do we then still have parts of everything highly dependent on other parts of everything? Will it then be proper to have parts of everything depending on everything? In this way parts of everything will never be free because the only way for a part of everything to be free is to be everything. Checking myself I wonder if I am sharing the emptiness of my thoughts or the part of everything I know because if this is everything or nothing, my objective will be met but my plan failed. Then I would have to rewrite myself as truthful as I know and maybe then I would progress towards a better part of everything. What is everything, what is nothing and what is a part of everything? Everything is existence as I know it but my knowledge of existence maybe different from yours and that too is perfect. A part of everything is a part of existence, like a human being or the mountain.

Nothing is the source of everything and it is where everything goes. When I believed myself to be less capable, I would wait or seek someone more capable to assist me but believing kept me a distance from trying and without trying I was not learning. Today I look at everything and find that it came from nothing, so I know where I came from and with the mere view of where everything is going, I already know where I am going. I then looked at the things I liked most about everything, the fact that it is perfect and the fact that it learns. So being a part of a perfect system that learns makes me exactly that. Everything learns so that it can be able to store all the lessons as nothing, so nothing knows everything. After writing, I will read and I will learn about views that I hold as a part of everything. Then I will either chose to judge myself based on this work or simply try to write something better. If I do judge myself in the negative, I have everything to punish myself and if I judge myself positively, I have everything to reward myself. So if I cause myself suffering, it's a choice I made and if I cause my own freedom, it's a different choice I made then.

It is the same views I hold about everything and all parts of it that gives me the experience

I have in life. The blame is mine eventually and the praise is mine eventually as I freely work myself through this writing and open myself up for a better view of my thoughts. Opening myself up means everything can view my offering through these words and make their interpretations. Misunderstanding will lead to inaccurate flow of information until slender or praises arise or maybe both. However, as a part of everything, I only concern myself with this part. The other part that concerns itself with another will live to decipher information deliberately protected by another and learn more about another only to be stuck where the other could no longer progress with their lessons. Lessons only comes to those who work, those who dare themselves against the unknown and only those who follow the perfection of everything. The most crucial point about working and learning lessons is that: when the time is right, support will come from nothing to support the part of everything that is working until its lessons are achieved completely. I check myself again and find that I wrote something about everything, nothing and a part of everything, I will therefore base this writing on this. I find a few but simple points with this, the importance of work and the importance of support for all lessons and progress within the part of everything and everything. Nothing is outside existence and carries the potential of everything, when everything is realized, nothing is fulfilled.

All the differences and turmoil experienced within some parts of everything are relevant. Some may be viewed as cruel and evil but us being a part of all this must learn and progress so that such experiences maybe left a distance below us. Mental elevation is a part of everything that can be experienced by everything. I only found fear to be the one separating a part of everything from everything. Fear comes to take advantage of those who are alone, blind and punishing themselves and it provides this lot with more creative methods of torturing themselves. Fear created many organizations and movements that helps people to feel supported by others and thereby ignoring the purest support that comes from nothing. This in turn resulted in people enjoying the fleeting power of being looked upon for help and guidance, thereby discouraging others from working. Without work, there will be no lessons and without lessons, there will be no progress. The part of everything that I write learnt this.

It is not possible to force someone to transcribe their thoughts on paper at the will of another, for example, artists sign record deals and commit to certain time frames at the will of the record owner. The work will not reflect the true artist's touch as it will lack in liberty. The things I write may take me a week but I will not write another thing even when given a year to prepare at the will of another. I therefore offer something for my reading appetite, not because of another.

Nothing

Nothing is creation before the beginning of existence, so it is the seat of existence, the place that existence call home. It is as mighty as every part of everything has imagined it to be, however creation base itself on six principles and these principles are of much interest to me in this writing. I found the very principles to be the bases of my existence and to learn more I need to engage the principles for myself. I speak of creation and existence, everything and a part of everything. Now I break it down for a broader view, everything is in existence because everything exist, so everything is existence and I use the words interchangeably, it gives me more. A part of everything is the individual things that make up everything, these things are a part of existence because they exist. Creation can be summed up as everything and nothing or existence and none-existence. So what was before everything existed? Nothing was, so nothing created everything employing the six basic principles of creation. The six basic principles of creation always have three elements to manifest everything, these elements created systems and the smallest things within these systems. It is sound, work and light. Everything in existence comes from the combination of the three. However, for the three elements to be manifest into everything, creation goes through the four stages of birthing. The four stages of birthing are work, discovery, support and balance, in the whole of existence nothing can ever be truly independent without having gone through these four stages. I however chose to write the six principles of creation of which I have simplified for my everyday writing and conversations as the basic principles of self-realization.

Nothing is everything before everything can be known by anything and so because nothing knows everything at this level, everything can be considered the potential by all things at this point. Viewing it as a potential gives me something to work with because that's all I need, something from nothing to do everything I need to do. To find something to work with from nothing requires me to go into nothing to find it or better yet I will need to be nothing to find it. Many people hold on to things that other people found from nothing as people are afraid of being nothing themselves. When a person becomes nothing, it's the only time a person faces everything. I mentioned in the preface that everything cannot fit in a single man's memory, the attempt to fit everything into a single man's memory leaves people insane. Of course, insanity is a part of everything, a consequence of reaching nothing and trying to make sense of everything. However, some people will become nothing and find something from nothing, use that thing to create or do everything they ever needed to do. So every part of everything will bring something from nothing each, if they are willing to become nothing. The parts that never bring anything from nothing are like failed memories. Anything found from nothing will have the three basic elements of creation: sound, work and light. I find many good reasons to become nothing as I get to understand that the bright star was nothing at some point and now a bright star. Discouraging other from learning or being nothing is also a part of everything, the good to the ugliest are a necessary part of everything as they all came from nothing.

The slave and the master is a necessary part of everything, even the liberation of the slave and the fall of the master is a necessary part of everything. The thing I gather from this writing so far is that nothing is a good point to start from, I know myself as a part of everything, I must also know myself as nothing. So that I can learn and understand something about being a part of everything. The funniest question would be where do I start if I want to become nothing? Why start somewhere, start from nothing. Some people might view a state of nothing as giving up all your belongings, being poor and living by the mountain side without food. Some might view it as complete surrender to a certain course they consider good. If all these views makes you to start from nothing, then you got it. The truth is, you will know when you start from nothing because you will have something to create. Nothing takes me through everything using something I found from it, here I learn how to use what I found from nothing. The situations means nothing is the utmost teacher in creation and the thing I find from nothing is a lesson about creation because I will use this thing to create myself. Well, If I was asked to choose from everything, I would have probably have chosen money, a house, a car or something else that is a part of everything.

However, nothing treats everything the same and gives everything the same thing, a lesson. Not just a lesson but a lesson that will help me create myself as a part of everything, so that I can achieve everything I ever needed myself. Imagine when I have created myself as everything I ever needed. I imagine if all the parts of everything were to become nothing and find something from it to create and do with at will. Also if everything was once nothing then every part of everything has been nothing at some point, the great people we know and the lost legacy of the once great, so what is exactly happening with all of this? The answer is simple but not easy, existence is divided into three and for me to understand this whole categorization I follow a strategy I found from something that I received from nothing. Existence is categorized into the past, the future and the present, so I must know who I am in the past, in the future and in the present. It does not mean that I have to go backwards to find my past and I don't have to look around to see my presence, however, the future never changes, it is always ahead as the past and the present. I start from the past ahead of me then go to the future and then live in the present. I now know it for a fact that I have been nothing because everything comes from nothing and I am a part of everything. The state of everything is perfect and I am a part of it, so it means I am perfect. Everything has a past, a future and a present moment, it therefore means that I also have and I must learn and know my past, my future and my presence.

All these things are work from nothing, so the reason of continuous creation is also revealed as everything must learn from nothing. I can now say that I understand why I have to be nothing if I need to be everything. Being something is only good for everything that was once nothing. So where do fleeting things come from, lies are like something that is trying to be nothing amongst everything. If something poses as though it came from nothing whilst it did not, it does not last long. In the midst of laziness, people do not work and as a result they forge things from other things and act like it came from nothing. This result of laziness is called ignorance of which it is a part of everything, however, it is used to fake things from everything and act like those things came from nothing. So ignorance is real but all its outcomes are not. It also remains a valid point to query if sickness came from ignorance or nothing. To find out correctly about this, I look at the cause of sickness and I find that it result from ignorant behavior, whether the behavior is dumb or intelligent, if it is ignorant, it will yield fleeting results.

If you are not interested in nothing, do not interfere with those who are interested because you value being interested in something. In simplicity the one who is interested in nothing is interested in everything and the one who is interested in something is interested in one thing. Nothing is the only thing, it is not one thing and something is a part of everything, it is not the only thing. When nothing manifest, the past of everything is revealed and I will start there first. It is therefore the principle of need that guides and govern me as I am nothing.

I feel the need to follow my feelings even when it is most difficult. My feelings are a form of communication and if I am to speak of effective communication, I have to start here. So need leads me to do work, work I need not understand beforehand but be fulfilled by achieving. Becoming nothing does not make sense, so I do not feel the need to make sense of things I am working on but feel the need to work on these things for the feeling that fulfills me.

Did I feel the need to exist, did I work, did I balance and realize myself?

The past

In the past I find the first thing that is done by creation, it has to work to fulfil the need it feels as nothing. What did the past have to work with in the beginning? It only had sound, which is feeling and light which is balanced feelings. So the past worked as sound to manifest as light. The work was so that nothing can know and learn from itself, I then looked at what is sound, what is work and what is light. Sound signals and instruct work through feelings, it is basically the communicator. Work is an act of fulfilling a certain communicate that came as instruction from sound as feelings. Light is the manifestation of sound through work, so light works and communicates to express balanced feelings. At this point I do not have a problem viewing myself as light, however I need to know how it happens. More especially the fact that light works and communicate, it reveals that light is a complete part of nothing. I work and I communicate, however, I have to realize these abilities from within. Work here goes beyond waking up for a nine to five job and communication is beyond talking. Sound is not noise, unless I fail to understand it and this has nothing to do with volume.

The past I write is mine to read, if it is read by another, I suggest to avoid acts of ignorance like treating my lessons as universal. This work will be a success if only it teaches me how to go from nothing to everything and teaches another person nothing. Every other individual must learn from nothing, so if others learn nothing, I rejoice because individuals will find something from nothing that will get them to everything. For as long as the past is behind me and my future ahead of me, I still have a lot of work to do. If my past is ahead of me and my future ahead of me, I still have a lot of work to do, however my position is true. If my past is right here and known to me and my future right here and known to me, I will have achieved my goal of knowing everything about me and only then will I live be in the present moment.

The present moment is created by the knowledge of the past, the future and the present. How would I be in the present moment if still have to go to the past or the future for some answers? So time travelling is a thing for learners, the travelers who seek answers from here and elsewhere, using something they learn from nothing to gather knowledge from everything to fulfil their own goal are not in the present for they would have their past, future and present at once. My past also suggest that every other individual part of everything is light, actually this brings me to the point, everything is light. In the future I will find the very light at a more grown or intense level, so the past is dense light and the future is lighter light, the present moment is pure light. Pure light is light in its perfect state. For example, in science the past would be the solar level, the future would be the galactic level and the present moment would be the universal level. The present moment is a point where everything about the individual part concerned is known. It is truly a point of knowing, ignorance is found in the past, however, one cannot fully realize anything if still living in ignorance. Those who are ignorant will find it difficult or impossible to learn from nothing and therefore will not realize their past. All pointers suggest nothing as the starting point, a point where everything is buried as potential waiting to be discovered as something that will be realized through work into everything.

When I first heard about time travel, I imagined a scenario where I would travel to a certain place to experience life as a younger version of myself. Little did I know that my past was right ahead? The past is only ahead for me because I started from nothing, starting from something would only place me in a predicament because I would have done so based on ignorance. The very thing I would have considered mine to start with would have been someone else's thing. With the very same behavior of ignorance I found many other interesting attempts on progress without having to go start from nothing. Some individuals promised others some things, only if the others remain loyal in a certain way. I then ask myself, how could a part of everything promise another part of everything something? I found that nothing can promise and deliver something to everything every time, and that is a lesson that lead to knowing. A part of everything will have to behave ignorantly to upset the flow of things from nothing to everything so that they can offer a part of everything the opportunity to claim something they did not receive from nothing. This is the source of chaos, a simple outcome of ignorant behavior.

In the past, there is also a huge challenge with interference. There is natural interference, something that dense light must deal with and orchestrated interference something that seek to derail dense light. So all these lessons from the past are never wasted as they contribute knowing to everything I have become. The past has so much been interfered with that we started to believe that light beings exist elsewhere in a higher realm, failing to realize that we are the light we seek from others. Taking advantage of others is actually blind interference as it does not even help the individual taking care of another. The pain and strife I experience is of my own doing and the situation will not change until I chose to liberate from it. To think that another will liberate me is another form of blind interference, every individual is working their way from nothing to achieve everything. The experience of waiting for another is a wasted memory, hence the past proves that thinking fails and knowing prevails. Thoughts process knowledge because it is already there and inactive thoughts starts searching for ways to survive but without any success, only find ways to interfere with other people's journey of creation through thinking. Think nothing and succeed in accessing the knowledge of everything, think of something and suffer the limitation of one thing. Nothing around us inspires the knowledge of everything and everything around us inspires the knowledge of one thing, which result in the very situation we do not like about everything we created from everything around us. When others respect great thinkers, I pay homage to great learners. The entire world suffers from activities of great thinkers, every now and then great learners provide solutions from knowledge they gain. Mathematics and science, politics and philosophy all came from great learners and are continuously corrupted by great thinkers.

The core lesson is that I have what I need, so why should I struggle trying to create what I do not need because I will struggle maintaining it. So it becomes a struggle on top of a struggle on top of another struggle forming what is basically known as lies. When one cannot keep up with their struggles anymore, they fall back to their true nature and this is where we say the lies are revealed. Lies normally collapse violently and the truth too will violently come out when suppressed for a long time. The outcomes break hearts, families and friendship but this is the best outcome of such situations because the truth must prevail. All this, result from not knowing our true nature, so we try to search but find ourselves searching at the wrong places. Imagine a scenario where the sea or mountain was living a struggle on top of another, when the lies break and their true nature reveals, the outcomes are very devastating. It is so because truth prevails. When an individual part of everything wakes up to the realization of who they really are, the past is fulfilled because only individuals who know themselves have a future. I therefore came to my past for the realization of self, I too need to move on to learn about my future.

I have to know how to work myself in the past, know how to discover myself and know how to balance or have a perfect view of myself in the past. So I dedicate myself to the learning process. Those who are dedicated in guiding others in the past only contaminate other individual journeys with their experience of the past. Only nothing will teach everything how to work the past and the future until the presence of everything is realized.

Working the past

Work is the only way for everything to manifest, it all started in the past revealing something I found from nothing. Imagine working without knowledge, this means even the things I find I doubt, I don't understand to a point where I only rely on truth. Each time I did good work, I would be fulfilled and each time my work was incorrect I would suffer. I soon realized that true and correct work liberate me and fleeting work frustrate and leave me struggling because I do not need to create based on my struggles, I base my creation on liberty so that only the truth may prevail. My work is now channeled by my feelings only because it is the only way for me to know that my lessons are true and correct. I do not desire to be a great thinker but a great learner as my work here is to learn from the past. As harsh as some of my lessons are in the past I still have to learn from them. For example slaves and masters are not true, parts of everything may work to serve each other but this mutual relationship is only possible with those who are able to serve themselves. The situation becomes true as no interference will take place. If everything worked no part of everything would create from something, everything would create from nothing. Growing up I thought it were no longer possible for our generation to bring things from nothing because I thought those who brought the things I knew were great thinkers. However, starting from nothing taught me to stop thinking and work my lessons. I learned to process my thoughts from nothing and draw from there something to create. The privilege of working from nothing to realize the presence of everything does not entail suffering, however failure to work result into suffering. Nothing knows everything, so if I am working on something and getting it wrong then nothing says, 'its wrong, work until you get it right'.

My good feeling will not fulfil, liberation will not come until I do the correct and truthful thing. Only I know when my work is correct and true, if it is not, I continue working on it until it becomes true. The continuous work in the past does not entail suffering, only incorrect and fleeting outcomes bring discord and suffering. Now imagine people working from something and celebrating their outcome, fulfilled and rewarded by those who commissioned the work. Why don't they suffer because their work does not come from nothing? They will not suffer because they are not working from a point of truth, more especially a point of their own truth. The struggle of picking something to work with from everything is bad enough because it's not based on truth and now imagine working and creating from the very same thing that brought struggle. The ignorant fail to know because they are yet to become nothing and learn how to create from there. So the struggle on top of a struggle will collapse because its lies and the truth of the original thing will remain. My course in the past is to realize who I am and I can only realize this through my own work. The races are aligned in creation, animals and the rivers so that creation must flow to fully realize the presence of everything. Based on this alignment, some created a struggle superiority and inferiority that led to systems of rule that portrays masters and slaves with many other struggles such as religion.

It does not matter how long the struggle continues but the truth will prevail and all the lies will collapse. Nothing can free a slave, those who work from nothing for the elimination of the slave and master setup become an inspiration to the slave and the master. Soon the slave and the master will become nothing and journey towards the presence of everything in harmony. It is not the lack of employment or money that leads to poverty, employment is not work, money will not fill the gap for not working. Poverty is struggle created on top of another struggle, it is not vital and only work from nothing will liberate people from poverty. Work is discouraged in many ways through interference by those who do not know nothing, holding onto the reigns of power and demanding submission. Instilling fear amongst every other individual and claiming to own everything, 'an impossible achievement because nothing owns everything'. Those who do not know nothing are holding onto power that is created through the struggle of another, true power will prevail and all these lies will perish. Fear has been the engine that drives the empires of power hungry individuals, they are powerful in the faces of those who do not know nothing. Fear is based on struggle and struggle is based on ignorance, soon all these lies will collapse giving way to the truth.

If I blame others I should be able to take a blame and if I praise others I should be able to enjoy some praises. However, creation does not take a blame or enjoy praises, creation works with the blame the same way it works with the praises. Creation is working on its course, it does not matter whether people praises and adore the work of creation, it remains on course.

Commonly people want to be praised for a job well done but creation is after fulfilment. The feeling of fulfilment does not come from earnings or some other kind of benefit, it is the benefit. Even with all the love I have for humanity, it is not possible for me to work for them. I am able to share the money, the assets and the time I earn through my work but I cannot share the fulfilling feeling of being able to do this. Even with sharing the money, the time and the assets, I cannot give them to another. I am only able to share my time with those who have time it's the only difference from my money and assets because I can only share with those I feel like sharing with. Even if I wish to share my time with you, it is impossible if you do not have the time to share. Only work can earn an individual some time. If you work for someone, you are only earning that person more time to share with people when he feels like it. I write about work like its mystical and special to be achieved by a chosen few, it's not like that. I am not talking about work based on someone else's instruction, I am talking about work based on your own instructions.

Suffer because you misunderstood your own instructions and liberate because you execute your own instruction very well. This does not mean we cannot work with others in harmony, work only loses meaning when you work for others. An engineer will always need to dress up, so the work of a tailor is always required. A supermarket will always need cashiers, so the two need to work together and not one for another because the balance will be lost in that way. Soccer players must work with the team for mutual success. In this way there will be no need to motivate employees because employees will not exist. Every stake holder will be fulfilling themselves as they fulfil the unit. Nothing is superior to work, so everything must work to maintain the harmony and the continuous flow of existence. Only things that do not work come to an end, the only reason for a world to come to an end will be because of not working. Nothing unleash the end to the sluggish and the struggling only for the truth to maintain a positive flow of creation. In my view, it is fowl to instil fear to others when you become fearful because if you could work on your fear the truth would prevail and knowledge would reign. Our suffering should come from our effort of seeking nothing to work with and our liberation should come from working with everything.

Work rewards us with knowledge and the time to apply our knowledge, what more would I ask for after knowing and having time to use my knowledge. Other people do not have neither the knowledge nor the time to reward others, so they reward differently from work.

Discovering past

The greatest discovery in the whole cosmic realm is that of self, knowing myself help me to know everything I need to know. For example I would know how my body process certain foods if I know myself and this would help me avoid food that frustrate my body when eaten. It's very interesting to know that I have discovered something but cannot yet see what it is. We are born to discover who we are and when we journey on our quest, we are taken straight to nothing, to learn how it all started. It's more like creation hid everything from us with the will to either find it or not. My option here is to either live thinking I am completely whole or journey through creation to know that I am completely whole. I have already highlighted the consequences of thinking versus processing thought already. Living in the discovery phase of creation without knowing ourselves causes us to create from other people's discoveries. This is the cause of struggling and frustration and the only way out is to journey through creation starting from nothing. Now that I am here having discovered self, what is my situation, how do I feel about it? I find that self is blind and this is the source of all the ignorance transpiring here. Self here is blind to realize who he is but can physically see other things, things he does not understand and keeps on thinking that a supreme generous but punishing being is providing. This struggle led to the thinking and comparing things, good and evil, beautiful and ugly and so forth. Dividing the oneness of everything and categorizing the harmony of co-creativity. This kind of thinking leads self to chaos because self does not work, so he fails to know and without knowledge everything perish. This is the bases for the end of existence pertaining to a sluggish self. The end is destiny for the sluggish self and eternity a destiny for the working self. It is impossible for an individual to bestow the end of another individual, however an individual bestows the end of everything for himself.

So it is not conducive to create from a level of ignorance and because I come from nothing, I work and process my thoughts to reveal the positive flow of creation. This discovery of self is very important in the process flow of creation as it is the first point of nothing to be express as something. For the very first time nothing exist but it needs to know itself in existence. Self cannot see nothing but self can see another and this means more work must be done from nothing. This is why people say, 'you cannot see your own flaws', so self has found a need for another self. In many ways we try to fill this gap and it's all good, make friends, family, colleagues and the many other selves we need. This is fleeting when based on ignorance and vital when based on knowledge. The feeling of needing another at this point destabilizes self and without knowledge, self struggles and frustrate down a destructive path. This destructive path may lead self to end everything for himself unless he makes means to work. The nice thing is that if self continues work from here he is progressing forward because he created himself from nothing. It's different from the point where he had to start from nothing. Now he continues through nothing to create the other that he needs. I imagine people without knowledge trying to save each other, their thinking is mostly concerned about saving their bodies.

However, knowing only concern itself about learning, even from the ignorant activities of self, knowing learn. Upon a closer deduction, I find that we are at a very critical point of creation. A point where we break things if we so choose and we can make things from nothing if we so choose. Working for me is of utmost important because what I create today will be me for eternity. If I fail to work everything end for me eternally, what would I become if I fail to work and create the way I need to become. Becoming nothing is always something to become, everything and only everything can go back to nothing. So when an individual becomes nothing, it is only a pathway to becoming everything through proper thought processes. Ignorance thinks it can become nothing and know everything without becoming everything, an unfortunate act of thinking. I already spoke about the clear process of becoming nothing then everything and finally nothing. It is not surprising that thinking continuously fails to create from nothing because it finds it easy to create from something, an unjust act in the flow of nature. The discovery of self is so limited in view that it concludes everything is discovery and all the work that led to their view of everything result from a super powerful being specially residing in a higher place.

This is basically because everything invisible to discovery does not exist, however many views are continuously born in the discovery level because some individuals become nothing and work towards becoming everything. These individuals have something to offer from nothing and individuals residing in the discovery level get inspired to work. Everything from nothing is light, this light is invisible to the individual who view discovery as everything. This is because all thought processes transform sound into light. In simplicity, nothing is unrealized light and everything is realized light. A common characteristic of light is that lower frequency light is always drawn to higher frequency light because higher frequency light inspires lower frequency light. This inspiration is normally called attraction and it is good because it triggers lower frequency light to work. The discovery level express dense light, normally considered third dimensional beings, from men to the rivers and the mountains. This is lower frequency light that lack the view of itself until it gets the inspiration to work, become nothing and rise to become everything. Knowing reveals the truth about some well-known discouraging acts. Categorization of people result from ignorance because these individuals think, darkness is misunderstood, and it is only dense light or unrealized light. Every individual is walking their own path, it does not matter how much I love you, I cannot work for your realization. Unity is the only way that we can work together, nothing works for everyone. It does not matter what other individuals think because thinking is a fleeting process. Fear exist only at this level of creation and keeps many individuals away from the journey of self-realization. This is only fear of the unknown, if individuals knew something, they wouldn't fear nothing.

In the positive flow of creation, upon the successful discovery of self, nothing is here to support. It is more like the mirror image is required for nothing to view itself through something in existence, it cannot view itself through nothing. The discovery needs another discovery to view so that it can know itself. The journey from nothing through work to discover something is now known by the individual part of everything, however, it remains a challenge because the individual part of everything lack the knowledge of thought processing. The whole work starts to feel like a back and forth situation without progress. As already pointed out, when beings in the discovery level work from something that someone else found, it can only be the bases of inspiration that lead that being to start from nothing. The nature of everything is that it can only be fulfilled by knowing as it is the only way to liberate from other things.

Supporting the past

This time the individual discovery does not have to become nothing because it is already something, so nothing support the individual discovery to create another individual discovery. If the individual part of everything knew that it has discovered itself now, it would be motivated but because of the lack of knowledge, the whole progress is viewed as suffering. Total support is necessary and it can only come from nothing and an instruction for new work is issued. From nothing another self is created through work, exactly the way the first self was created. It is this other self, needed by the first self for awareness and support. Creation is always true, when an individual part of everything work, it receives support equaling the total part worked. If this was not true, the first discovery would collapse upon attempting to further the work already done and nothing would fail to express itself in existence. I imagine that people are correct to say that we are born with a gift and this is the point where the difference is made. We are all born into the support of everything and the support is here because it expect us to work and realize our other self. Only those who work from this support level will proceed to realizing the other self. Every individual part of everything was first nothing and discovered itself, that is rebirth or remembering, however it is not complete remembering but a part of it. That is why nothing fully support the first self so that it can discover another self.

Support will not be there forever, work must be done to reach a level of independency where the individual part becomes everything it needs to survive. The unfortunate activity is when someone or something takes advantage of self when self is overwhelmed by work. This kind of intervention is mostly viewed as divine or fortunate but it is not natural. Self will start receiving support from someone or something causing a struggle on top of another struggle. This is where rituals, submission and worship comes from, the thing providing support loves power and it derives it from other things. Power is real and true power comes from nothing. So one person will need many people to do rituals, worship and drive them to submission as a way of instilling fear. Only the fearful can revere someone or something because they lack knowing, if you continue work under the support of someone else, they seek to benefit from your work thereby creating more struggle for you. We are already clear that creating from something only create fleeting moments that soon comes to an end. The end famously spoken by the creators of struggle and fleeting moments is true but it's not the end of everything in existence, it is the end of everything for them. So they encourage the captives to work so they can postpone the end with another fleeting moment. This version of the story is considered the truth by those who are living in ignorance. True natural creative work need not reverence, worship or rituals because it is self-sufficient. It only needs to work to fulfil itself, there is no part of it smaller than the other. Support is a principle it employs towards its own realization and ignorance is discovered during the discovery phase. So even the fleeting moments are true lessons in the greater scheme of creation. There's no lesson that is not true in the journey towards self-realization for anything in the whole of creation.

Creation itself does not happen in reverse, the concept known as falling is the practice of ignorance by knowing individual parts of everything. This creates guilt, guilt will eventually lead to fear and anxiety, fear and anxiety result from the lack of knowing. In this case its caused by breaking one thing and trying to fix it with another broken method, the string of broken things is lies and to undo a string of lies with lies leads to the end. The knowing gets buried deep within the so called falling person in the pursuit of power through lies, a classic act of creating chaos. Chaos never amounts to everything it fates as soon as it fails to sustain against the truth. From nothing work was done and then self was discovered, I am here as nothing to discover another self so that nothing can view itself in existence as existing. I imagine the very process being fulfilled by creation in supporting self to find another self is the process parents must play in supporting their children in finding themselves in the level of parent child relationship. Everything simulate natural creation, support cannot be demanded in creation but earned, it should also be earned everywhere in human relations. I have not yet found in the principle of creation where respect for another is key than respect of self to creation and self-realization. Respect is key to self as brought by the responsibility of knowing, it can only be earned in this way.

The respect that we deal with in our world is based on material achievements and quickly fades away when the material fades away. Support and respect are sometimes ignorantly demanding from other people for selfish fleeting elevation and power. Selfless support is not difficult, take the relationship between Earth and its sun, a reliable natural support, it is complete support. I however know that Earth is supported so that it can realize itself on another level. If Earth fails to work effectively and progress in the presence of this sun, it will perish when the support moves on to other working individual parts of everything. The support is forever there but time based for everything because everything flows from nothing to everything. Sound is timeless and support light of which is time, work is the constant factor within creation that helps manifest light or time. So the support from nothing is time based on the thing being supported, however it is found to be different in human beings where the support is time based on the availability of the supporter. Human beings in the discovery level cannot be everywhere at once and human beings die. Sometimes a child will need the support of their mother but find that it is not possible because she is dead. So the human beings support system is based on ignorance as it is fleeting. If the child quickly learns that he must learn from nothing, he then gains complete support from nothing and will never feel the need for the parent's support. My lesson is therefore to never enjoy support from others who are in need of support from nothing. Is support love, money, clothes, shelter, friendship, family or work? With a closer view support is found to be all of this whilst it remains none of this.

When do I then start to believe in nothing for progressive creation? Creation does not require me to believe in it, it only requires me to know it. Knowing nothing and knowing everything is knowing creation and there will never be no reason for fear or anxiety about any other thing in creation. Creation is so fair that everything it present me is all that I can deal with. Magic, illusions and many other fleeting acts come through the fear gateway and when they find that I have not this kind of gate, they melt. They were to deal unfairly, presenting me with something that will confuse me. They quickly realize that they are the fearful ones because I am not and they call me mystical. All the misunderstood things are not tempered with by the fearful ones. Knowing true support is the key to true liberation as all the fleeting magicians will be discouraged and disappear.

Balancing the past

Nothing works out to something and something works out to everything, the discovery of self and the other self in the past is everything. Now self is balanced by the other self not by nothing, it is free and independent because it has fulfilled itself. It can now enjoy the fruits of working which is the benefit of knowing. Now self knows who it is, what it is, where it came from, why it is here and works on finding out where to from here. It knows who and what it is because it looks on the other self and see its complete mirror image, communicates with the other and find that it is itself and not another. It knows where it came from and why it is here because it worked itself out to something that was discovered to be self and quickly realizes that it is here to learn from itself through work. It already learnt that to know where to from here, only work will provide those kind of answers. There is no other gateway to the other self than through self, any other way will cause unnecessary struggle and frustration. An actual mirror in our world fails to show an image of the other self but imitates the process of self and the other self. The balance brought by the other self does not only constitute the view of self but everything else that self would ever need. The support from nothing left because self was now balanced by everything it is, it will never need nothing for as long as it stays balanced in the past.

The other self is not superior to self, it is self and is a complete support of self as much as self completely support it. There is no need to revere self but to completely know it. The absence of the other self would result in a fall back to the discovery level where fear and anxiety reign as a result of ignorance. Independency means self and the other self no longer depend on nothing but on each other which is myself. Self-realization is a journey towards the realization of myself, a complete entity in the past. This means I now completely rely on myself, follow myself, guide myself, protect myself and grow myself. Not in an arrogant manner that will interfere with other individual parts of everything on their own journeys. Knowing does not break things, knowing promotes working together harmoniously towards a much better realization. For the first time, this is the point where I started understanding why I had to go through all the trouble of becoming nothing in the face of everything. I know now why I stopped doing other people's bidding even when it seemed to close serious financial benefits and negatively affecting those I truly love and care about. I was never sufficient to take care of myself, the worse joke was my attempt to taking care of other people. How would I guide others when I failed to guide myself? I was very uncomfortable with completely relying on other individual's work to guide myself, even worse imparting such guidance to others as my own. However, the work of those who worked before me, inspired me and I worked towards my own realization. Today I work again from no material to gain balanced material things because I have learnt to work from nothing to something that is completely balanced. Basing everything I do in the natural principles of creation is my way forward as I will not break any other thing during my creation. I worked on self and the other self so that I could have myself working for me. I work on my material things from nothing, so that my material things can work for me. So for every vital thing I will ever become, I have to work first. For eternity everything I ever attain benefits nothing with lessons and knowing and this is the only way for me to become nothing.

When balanced, working with others become interesting as other individual parts of everything do not know my course but work with me as they work towards their own cause. This is what knowing does, works in harmony for the benefit of everything. As a balanced individual, I command my own work and support it following the exact principles that balanced myself. The creativity factor allows me to work in realizing myself same time I work on realizing my own things. This result from the multidimensionality factor of self and the other self because they both create and support each other completely. The gateway to my other self is through myself and the only way to know myself is with my other self. Continuously we imitate creation in the level of our world or rather I say we create like creation in the level of our world. We have a special way of having our other self in the physical, like getting married. The idea is to work as they work and support them as they support you in the physical, this way, the wife and husband will succeed in co-creating a life in the physical and elsewhere.

Every other struggle experienced by the union of husband and wife result as a failure to base the union in the basic principles of creation. There is not a single moment that existence is not working, learning, supporting and liberating itself as it realizes its true self. Any other circumstance outside this one is a struggle that creates a fleeting moment. Imagine the circumstance where a fully liberated person creates with ignorant people, many circumstances result, defying, reverence, elevation and death just to name a few. Fear and anxiety compromises those who are ignorant and knowing strengthens those who know, this is why the existence of the one who knows does not seek to interfere with the ignorant one. Like knowing in the past, self is aware that it still need knowing in the future and only then will it achieve knowing in the present. The ignorant ask for wisdom from the one who knows, not knowing that the one who knows is at work to know more. Something everyone is capable of doing and attaining naturally. Charlatans, magicians and power mongers focus completely in attaining the most glamorous fleeting moments through the knowing of the attained, causing an unnecessary struggle that leads to the end. It's called the end because lies are short lived and the truth endures forever. So balance confirms that we exist here and elsewhere, so self must work every time the other self is working, lest the balance will be lost and frustration will return.

Even as I am here in the past, I already know the future exist and I must find it for myself, the present exist and I must find it for myself. Everything I know, my other self knows and nothing knows. I am not a politician, a doctor or an accountant but all these people make living in our world today possible and this is why I am living with other parts of everything. However, when politics fades away, leadership will remain, when doctors fades away, healing will remain and when accountants fades away, numbers will remain. An example of things that every individual part of everything is capable of knowing. Through work we are all going to lead ourselves, heal ourselves and master the numbers for ourselves. Titles are only a thing of the past, work, discoveries, support and knowing is a thing of the present time. No wonder politics is so complex, some politicians cannot lead themselves, some doctors cannot heal themselves and some accountants cannot account with numbers for themselves. This is what liberation means and no one can force the right circumstance of liberation, each and every being must work for their own liberation.

In existence progress is measured with the extent of interference management, how well is self and the other self able to communicate. Their fluent communication leads to efficient realization of myself. In the past, the interference is managed through work but remains at the highest level throughout existence. This leads to a fully realized being yearning for more and the creation of the future begins through more work and higher discoveries.

Realizing past

The full realization of self and the other self is myself, which I consider to be my complete realization in the past. This is a point where nothing knows itself and this knowing came through endless lessons based on work and harmony. Nothing know that this is the past realization of myself, new questions are arising, questions like do I have a future and if I do how am I there? Everything or everyone who based their existence in ignorance ended very soon as ignorance fails to realize itself. It is not our cohabited planet, universe or the cosmos that end, it is not the minutes, hours or days that end because all this succeeded in realizing itself. It is only the brief moment that could not work itself into real time or real light that fails to realize itself. After all sound was the first thing to manifest from nothing, through work it translated into light. Sound, work and light was nothing and became everything at this point. I have realized that progress is based is co-working, the freedom of shining bright can only be achieved through free speech. What others inspire, nothing can teach, it is foul to consume other people's lessons for ourselves because we spend lifetimes attempting to master them without success. Everything great people share as their lessons in life is inspiration, an honest lesson for that great one to learn. Such lessons are mostly embedded in pages as books and their sole purpose was for the discoverer to read and elevate himself further through his own work. Wanting to become like the author of great works leads to suicide because at the end you never work, you never discover and so you never become.

However, such books informs us that such things already exist and they came from nothing, so we journey there to find new things for ourselves that we will share coherently with everything that already exist. Teaching institutions should merely inspire us to become the unknown greats and not to revere those who came before us like they were chosen from a special place to come and rescue us. The world that we created for some time now may be off the course of natural creative principles, however, it is on course with the end. No one will succeeding in rescuing us but ourselves, any other beings proclaiming we want to help or we are here to help are on course of their own end. Deceiving others intentionally is a lie that creates struggles that lead to a certain end. So I look no further but within me for answers and I find no blockages from working my own self into realization. The exiting part about getting one plus one correct is that you will attempt one plus two and proceed for as long as you get the sums correct. I am a product of teaching institutions and am very grateful for I learnt how to read and write, basic math and science and mastered none. For a long time it bothered me that I did not go that much further to be honored, become a master or a professor. Soon I realized that I failed to be honored for other people's great works, my journey was to master and realize myself. Something I found fulfilling than being a professor who does not know nothing. Self-realization has no graduation papers because it continues to happen throughout life, the titles and honors should do for inspiration of going through many books, however, the success of doing so should be measured through work that and individual creates from nothing.

I find that realization is reward enough and it makes sense to motivate students to read the works of great learners. If teaching institutions were able to teach students how to become nothing, self-realization would triumph over day jobs promoting people to serve other people. I realize these things for myself today as I find that I cannot help the children in teaching institutions today and I cannot even help my own children to know nothing as a starting point. My work might just inspire one or two of them to become nothing and I will have succeeded in sharing the silence in my thoughts. Interference is the biggest obstacle even for the working individuals, your personal view of money and all the valuable material things in this world counts. What would you do to achieve them, would you follow them from nothing or maybe you want to have them from something else. Nothing is the only way, any other way is interference and self-realization becomes a distant dream. It's a challenges to want all these things in existence without knowing because you end up with things you do not need.

Without knowing I thought all interference is bad, the love of money, fancy cars and houses. Self-realization taught me to process my thoughts to uncover the truth and I found that all the things considered to be bad came from nothing. I myself will be bad if I become the very interference I speak of, derailing others from nothing. So how do I speak of my journey to self-realization, is it the only way to become, is it the only rightful way, do people have to consult me as a master of self-realization? My answer is no, this is not the only way to become nor the only rightful way and no one must consult me as a master. I have only been able to realize myself and if any other looks upon me instead of looking within themselves for answers, I will have failed to inspire people with nothing. My story may as well be treated like the one a friend tells about the new shoe he bought from town, if his story is good enough it should inspire me to get my own pair. If I take his story as meaning that his shoes were the only shoes in town, I might as well wait for him to give away his old pair, if I take his story as the only way to get new shoes from town, I will follow it and end up with only the shoes he got from town but if I take his story as a way of getting new things from town, I will be able to get myself shoes and more as and when I need them. We create our own interference by wanting things from others and following others on their journey whilst we could pave a new way for new things to come. In the unrealized past, teaching institution had a valid role to play but soon require an upgrade in the realized past. How about the fact that as a realized being I need to also realize myself in the future, how will teaching institutions be like there? Only the future beings know because they created it.

My complete self-realization in the past is sealed by nothing, I am exactly where I started but I am something now and ready to start creating something else. Which means, nothing creates from nothing and fully realized beings creates from nothing. As a fully realized being I am able to work and starting from nothing supercharge my working ability to realize myself in the future. The future belongs to those who know their past, they have a proper foundation to lay their work on because only those who know nothing can create their past. So the four key stage of creation is nothing, the past, the future and the present, there is no going around it. The common ignorant view would be that being here right now is being present, however knowing knows the amount of work you need to do to be present. A day is present because it expresses its past, future and presence all at once, whilst in the third dimension some beings are only expressing their discovered self, some don't even know who they are. I have heard it before when people say you must know where you come from to know where you are going because this will help you know where you are. Then I viewed the past like my previous activities in life, little did I know that it is beyond a position in space.

I created myself from nothing and from here I need to grow myself into a being who will live in the past and the future. Being everywhere at the same time is based on knowing not physical presence, the trick about knowing is that everyone learns it for himself. After learning and knowing my own future, I continue to the present. I would always be absent from here if I only know my past and the future, so it is important to also be present at all times. Only then will I experience my day in full because a day is completely present.

Do I communicate with myself, do I trust, respect and love myself enough to liberate myself?

The future

Being balanced as an individual left my existence unbalanced because I know my balance in the past, so I proceed into the future to realize myself as a complete being. If the past is the elders in existence, the future is the children and the present is the family. So my example shows that family is based in truthful knowing. A family without children is a family without a future and they cannot experience life in the present because they are based in the past as a family. Creative work never stops until everything is balanced, so heads of families never stop working on their families until they realize balance in the family. According to everything I have already learnt, it also means that families will live forever. So everything else that is here to support families must be vital and created based on the six principles of creation. If not the family will struggle and soon realize its end if no one in the family creates vital support. If my wife knew I take my neighbor's earning to support my family she will leave and if my wife leaves, my children will suffer and the family fates. However, the children may learn and create good support for their family basing their support on vital work, their family will survive. So having a strong vital family provides the members of the family with strong vital support. I imagine an individuals who works to create a family that works, this leads to a community that works up to a world that works. It is true, all efforts are critical and not all results of work are physical. The reason why families honor their ancestors is because of the work they did to create these families.

It will therefore be a very difficult task to create a country where the people do not work because it means sluggish or fewer families constitute this country. How will this country be supported and at the global level, how will a planet lacking of vital work be supported? Human beings write and seal their own fate because if we do not work, we are going to feed from those who work around us. In this case being the animals and the trees, creating another struggle until they too stop working. Imagine a planet where the people, animals and trees do not work. The fate of all the slugging is the end of their existence, laziness is lies and lies fails to live on when the truth is revealed. So families based on the principles of creation become the very support existence need to thrive in the face of eternity. I too did not know why I was within this family I was born but now the truth is revealed and my work continues. If you find yourself longing for a better future, you must know that a lot of work awaits you and in this case you can check if you truly know your past. We have not lived here until we know our past, future and present selves. Lessons from the past must come from ourselves and future intervention must also come from ourselves for us to know who we are in this present time. Often stories of advanced civilizations from the starts have been told and most people wish those beings would come and help us. No one is coming because we have not created ourselves as the advanced civilization in our own future. Lest us now view the cosmos as a completely realized system that is realized through work.

A group of realized planets form a solar system and this is the past of the universal system. A group of realized solar systems form a galactic system and this is the future of the universal system and a group of realized galactic systems form a universal system and this is the present time of the universal system. Every individual must realize himself the way a universal system does so that a common contribution like the existence of the cosmos can manifest amongst individuals. For example every universe work to form a balanced universal system that exist in the present time. So the simplest question is as follows for every individual, who are you in the solar level, who are you in the galactic level and who are you in the universal level? If I have not realized my existence in the galactic level, why should I expect galactic beings to come to my rescue and if I have not realized my existence in the universal level, why should I expect universal beings to come to my rescue? Advising children is simple to someone who knows the future and living with family is simple to someone who knows the present time. Those who only knows the past are an interesting challenge, they always go to the past for answers, revere their ancestors and refuse any kind of view that challenges the past. I had to learn from family structures and the universal structure to understand the importance of knowing the past, the future and the present.

For a very long time we have been told about the duality of things in our lives but it most concentrated on things like love and hate, up and down, the past and the future, light and dark and so forth. If you know that people love and people hate, then you must let people be, if you know up and you know down then you must know here, if you know the past and the future then you must know the present and if you know light and dark then you know nothing. These lessons are telling me that lacking knowing separates things and knowing unites things harmoniously. The fact that I do not want nothing does not mean that I do not need everything and the fact that I want something does not mean that I need everything. When someone need everything the journey will lead them to nothing and those who do not want nothing are after everything. Creating my future, I do not need any other thing but my future, even when you may observe and feel like you would be able to help me, you won't. Need always triumph over wants because need triggers work and wants triggers lies. For everything a person wants, a plan derived from great thinking will be devised and when a person need something, they process thoughts from nothing until they find a way. For example, people want to live forever and never age and many attempts have been employed through medical procedures. Creation know how a man may live forever and that knowledge is available for everyone's benefit. The body of a human being ages and dies disappointingly earlier than most people can accept and creation gives that being a new body every time the need arises. After the full realization of the past, the past goes through nothing to start new work and realize the future. In common language we would say the past dies to be born again in the future. So the transitional process of starting from nothing every time is considered death in our everyday language. I refrained from saying that one must die if they are going to learn and create from nothing. So once a person knows, death cease to exist as creation reveals the truth about those considered to be dead. However, without lessons no one is able to reach nothing and existence ceases to be when people do not learn because that is a result of not working. Supposedly this is what should be considered death. The end of existence, not the process of growth or the transitioning from one body to the next. So knowing the past and the future allows me to be in the past and be in the future at the same time an outcome of work and not magic or miracles, same difference. Knowing the past and the future is still a process of growth because I also need to know the present, a level of existence where the past and the future is expressed without colliding.

Starting work in the future will require much more than the work done in the past and it remains achievable because I am completely balanced by self and my other self. So death is not my concern and being young again does not worry me as it gives me a better opportunity to learn and grow again. This time in a much bigger environment that is not ignorant. Everything here knows and the price of breaking things knowingly is much higher than that of breaking things as a result of ignorance.

Working the future

Work here is based on the knowing of the past and continues to grow towards a bigger and better self. I actually work here to find out who I am in the future and if the view I hold about my next example was manifest in our world progress would be much better than now. I view the notion of first world countries, second world countries and third world countries like this. A third world country is a country that is stuck in the past, this country is not aware of its future and not aware of its presence. A second world country is a country that is stuck in the future, it is aware of its past and aware of its future but not aware of its presence. A first world country is aware of its past, aware of its future and aware of its presence. So this view already concludes which of these countries would be more progressive than the others and clarifies that it is not based on which one wins the wars. Countries will be better progressive with working families and families are better progressive with working individuals. However, this does not mean that countries would homogeneously have first world or third world citizens and this is why work is an individual thing. In the future we are all children, we learn intimately because we work as much, we are not corrupted by the love of power or other material things. It is only the past we know that has memories of ignorance and lies but we know all the consequence of such things here. So the work done breeds completely different lessons from those of the past that drove us to the realization of who we are.

The first lesson I find even before I discover who I am in the future is that of respect, I have to respect the past that I come from. Respect was demanded by nothing in the past and the lessons were so harsh that lies ended lives in the past. Now as a child who comes from a knowing past I receive guidance and support way before I discover myself or receive support from nothing. If I learn from the past, I will not derail on my journey of self-realization in the future and therefore I will not experience anything harsh. My elder, the past, is myself and so I teach myself respect in the future so that I do not have to disrespect, lie and struggle. I imagine disciplinary actions from myself are better than those coming from nothing, so if I am to realize who I am in the future I need to respect myself. I found that respecting myself makes it very simple for me to respect others and in this way I will not interfere with other creative individual. Imagine if I derail from my course and nothing interferes, I will suffer and my elder will suffer. I do not wish to work with an upset elder who does not wish to work with nothing. So this is how knowing keeps everything in check. As a child I start from the level of self in the future and my other self also start at the level of self. Self and my other self now learn respect from the past and must continue to stay in balance as work progresses. So everything good and everything bad I experience comes from myself at this level or elsewhere, this I must learn and know so that I can always stand up and clean after myself. The next important thing here is communication, self and my other self must communicate clearly to progress effectively, and the past support this communication. This communication is normally a feeling and this is why I have to always follow myself, lest I follow other people's feelings.

It depends from individual to individual, strong feelings may end up as graphic, verbal or both. Creation has unthinkable ways of communicating and we express the ways we master. Sound for instant, can be audible and sometimes not and light can be visible and sometimes not, either way, sound or light continues to communicate through feelings. The communication will differ depending on that individual part of everything communicating. The other thing the past is teaching me in the future is trust, I have to trust myself. Hesitation or doubt can lead to an unnecessary struggle in the future and the past already know the harsh consequences of struggling. Often, it has been written in good books that for everything to flow smooth one must be connected. The past must flawlessly connect with the future. If did not trust myself, I would have no need to trust any other. Love is the feeling I always felt without even knowing, it intensified and kept me warm when I became nothing and fulfilled me when I achieved something in the past. Now I have to cherish and grow with this feeling that reminds me that I am nothing. I found the feeling of love to grow rapidly when I share it with nothing and it soon teaches me tolerance when I share it with something. The past reminds me about how I came to know love and now I have to grow with my love.

Sharing my love with others proved to be successful when we all depend on nothing but the love. These things: respect, communication, trust and love I learnt the hard way in the past and in the future I learn them as a child. So nothing is within me and everything is without me, this is how the past clarifies my existence as I have to depend on what I have within me. The future must learn everything from the past as a child because soon they will discover who they are and work their own way. So working in the future begins when the future learns from the past, in this way when the future discover itself, it will know where it comes from. Unlike the past, it won't have to go and start from nothing but know why it receives support from nothing. Imagining children like this makes me wonder. These are the kind of children who seem to grow up smoothly and we say that they are lucky but they are not, they worked. If every child was born and taught very well where they come from, they would grow up to discover exactly who they are without having to suffer and start from nothing. If I were given the opportunity to teach the children who they are, I would decline because this would lead to many mini me individuals. The past learns from nothing, the future learns from the past, I did this for myself. The elders learn from nothing and the children learn from the elders, if the scenario is not like this children grow up in ignorance and must work hard to become something so that they can learn. Only then will they have a future to create, every individual for himself and nothing for everything. I suppose it's time I also acknowledge that I am my own elder and also my own child, if not I would have to be an ignorant individual who must first become something. If the past was considered dead, in the future it is reincarnated, however, knowing never dies it transition to a higher level of knowing. Death an outcome of Ignorance does not transition, it is the end.

For as long as a family thrives, it knows no death but transition after transition that leads to eternity. Without this kind of work in the future, there will be no discovery of the future and without the discovery of the future, there will be no support for the future. This kind of future will not balance and it soon realize its end. This level of work in the future is done by self and my other self, a formidable team that knows the importance of support and balance. This team knows respect, communication, trust and love, they know fulfilment as a priceless feeling and knowing is an eternal reward. When an individual part of everything stand in the way of other individuals, such an individual has no past lest they would be busy working on their future. When an individual part of everything dedicates his life in teaching other individuals about themselves, such an individuals has no past lest they would be busy teaching their future about their past.

What then should be taught by knowing individual to ignorant individual, knowing people should teach nothing so that the ignorant can be overwhelmed by everything the knowing know and learn nothing from it. In simplicity, those who know will sometime willingly share their own lesson and experience hoping to inspire and not to create copies of themselves through others. The future is always perfect, the sluggish will never discover it.

Discovering the future

All I need to know is that I fully exist in the future and now I found myself with respect, proper communication, trust and love. Take a day for example, it was here yesterday, it is here today and will be here tomorrow, even if all the watches in the world chose to break, a complete day will always be here. This is because a day has fully realized its past, its future and its present time lest we would have a part of it in the past, something else in the future and something different today. In the future I and my other self continue to grow, our work led to our growth and our growth led to the realization that we are not balanced. So what was once balanced in the past, now seeks balancing because the future just became bigger than the past. Often elderly people say they do not understand this new generation because they do things different from the way things were done in the past. This is totally not an outcome of ignorance, it is perfectly natural in an environment where the elderly people have done their part well. In cases where the different result from ignorance because the elders did not work, the children fail in the future, they never even discover themselves. They actually appear like the future when they are actually stuck in the past with an opportunity to learn from nothing.

When the future is discovered, it's time for the elders to let it to itself so that they can also learn from it because in this way the future will blossom and shine even brighter than before. Imagine death without having discovered your future, progressive transitioning does not happen and you go back to your past. Progress result from work and we are reborn as children to have a better shot at becoming something that is new, bigger and better if it wasn't so, we would remain in our ignorant past where our lives end without knowing or maybe fully realize ourselves in the past and frustrate to a deranging end. Eternity without the future and the present would remain an impossible thing and so nothing would never know the full extent of its might. Just like nothing extending itself through the past, the future and the present, everything does the same thing to fully realize itself. As the child now, I am going to face myself without my elders protecting me from myself. If I fail to conquer myself, I perish and if I conquer myself I balance and the failure to conquer myself here means the failure to overcome my fears which are my weaknesses. For example people may fear to face their deepest issues that makes them vulnerable or ugly in life. Everyone must deal with their level of greed, anger, hate and lust and conquer them. Meaning they have to learn to fully control them because no in the future must have excuses for taking other people's things, killing other people because they hate them, breaking things because they were angry or fail to control their sexual feelings. So the future must face and deal with these things for itself, the past also dealt with these things in its own way.

Governments legislate laws to discipline people without self control, it proves that our governments are stuck in the unrealized past. If we had future oriented governments, the iron grip on legislation would be future oriented concentrating on the quality of education and work. Education and work that prioritizes the individual citizen. However, ignorance lead to the love of power and every product of ignorance will remain ignorant until individuals look inward for nothing. The four issues I face with myself, greed, lust, hate and anger earned me complete support from nothing, proving that even loving, trusting, properly communicating people and respectful people must face themselves to overcome these issues. Only knowing can relieve me off these burdening issues and so my goal becomes knowing. I therefore learn what happens when I submit to myself, what the consequences are and what changes if I conquer myself. I found that if I conquer myself, I will never submit to lust, greed, anger and hate, I liberate from the issues trying to control me. However, if I fail to conquer myself many frustrations will unfold. Greediness leads to highly unacceptable and uncontrollable corruption even when totally avoidable. Individuals will find themselves taking from others even when they have enough, even when the taking brings shame and disgrace. People become slaves of their own self control issues and then play victims because they lack the ability to stand up for themselves. Hate leads people to unnecessary killing, for example, killing people because they are of a different race or religion. In this case excuses are made, even worse they are sometimes, attributed to higher courses just because people fail to work and conquer their self control issues. Anger always leads to regrets and when one fails to take responsibility they simply say I was angry. Lust break good families and hurt good people, simply because of a brief ignorant moment of passion. This weakness has brought down kingdoms and great leaders because wars have been fought triggered by unfaithfulness.

Many people wrote about remembering who we are, some say that we are from the stars and I also realize the validity of their rendering. Visible planets are in the past and galaxies are in the future but a balanced universe is neither from the past nor the future, it has always been here. Often as children we are asked about our future dreams and often this question is asked as though the future is yet to come or maybe we are yet to get to it. If a person living in the unrealized past talks about their future dreams, such dreams are true because they remain dreams and are never realized in the unrealized past. I find that we should not dream about the past or the future but create ourselves in the past, the future and the present. This way, the one who lives in the past creates himself and lives in the past with no dreams about the future and when he finds the need, he proceed to create himself and live in the future until the day he find the need to create himself and live in the present.

It is important that we know where we are so that we may avoid to be stuck in dreams. However, if dreams are the inspiration that propels us to nothing then something and then everything, we must call them inspirations. Dreams happens exactly where we are, if I live in the unrealized past, my dreams will be full of ignorance and if I live in the realized future, my dreams will be filled with knowledge as they depict my immediate presence here and elsewhere. This way I find no need to relate my dream to the past or the future but who I am and I embrace them as my experiences. Everybody dreams but not everyone is inspired to create the unknown, dreaming will stop only when one is unfortunately dead. Can important communication reach you through dreams? Yes and this communication is happening exactly where you are. I never ignore a single part of who I am because I learned that communication is important in life. This is most important in life because every light in existence is time itself. The realization of a day has put the importance of time in layman's view using the clock because the past, the future and the present come together as hours to form a fully realized day. In a single life span, men must realize their past, their future and their presence to fully liberate and enjoy life. This brings to our attention the importance of time even in clockwise terms. Are we really using our time wisely or maybe our timing is off course? The struggle truly eases when we continue to realize ourselves to the best of who we are. A common example is an artist working on someone else's factory, this is a classic example of lost time. This artist will never be fulfilled, the amount of money he makes doesn't really matter until he gets to spend his time right.

If time was to be correctly aligned efficiently, a normal life span of a human body would be correctly established and co-creativity would be flawless. We would all base our lives on activities that fulfils us and I do not see the roles of soldiers and police, the roles of those who are supposedly responsible for other people would diminish rapidly. The world would work side by side humans, animals, the water and the trees, mountain, rivers and all elements of the earth. These are the things I discover in the future, I however continue my lessons through the discovery level to the support level. There I will have nothing totally supporting me and I will face myself.

Supporting the future

The self that I discovered in the future was once a balanced being in the past, this is the point where the future becomes better than the past. This is when the child becomes better than the elder because the child enhances his knowing in the future on top of everything that the past taught him. Now that the past has played its role in the future, nothing takes over with total support so that the future may as well create something from nothing. The child liberate from the elder and gain support from nothing, the elder trust nothing to guide and support his child because he also learnt from nothing. This is what the future need if it is to liberate and get to an independent level of existence. The future practically discovered itself and the support is helping the future to create its other self, in the same way that nothing supported the past to create its other self. I imagine this means that if parents do good work with their child, there won't be a need for anxiety and worry when the child breaks away from the parents to create his own existence.

The support reveals that when the past balance itself with another past, the future is born. All this while, the past broke itself down and worked to come up with something new and its eagerness and commitment led it to its discovery. It could no longer realize itself like it did in the past, so support kicked in and now the future is working on its other self. What would have been ignorance because the future lacks the knowledge of self is highly driven by knowing from the past, so work in the future is twice than it was in the past. Support is helping self to remain stable whilst it work on its other self to raise its awareness just by looking at itself and knowing what it is. It will know everything the other self does, which is everything it does, working and becoming. So the perfect union of the past that is balanced with another past produce a perfectly balanced future. This is why the future works, even when it is completely unaware of itself, its failure to work will fail the past from gaining new and more advanced experiences. Imagine a completely selfish individual, this individual will be able to work tirelessly on himself even when such work is hopeless and uncomfortable to close friends and family. This is the kind of individual that completely realized himself in the past as a completely independent being. This individual completes the process of self-realization called the past in this work. As a fully realized being he moves on to the future where he finds that more work is required to fully realize the future. He first works on what he knows and discovers that it could only take him so far because he is now out of balance again. He gains support from nothing and works hard to discover another self who has completely worked like him so that they can complement each other and support each other. This is the point where he lets go of selfishness to survive lest he will suffer from the lack of balance and perish.

New lessons surfaces for him and he learns about unity, the art of working together for a greater course. So the future is home to entities that are working together towards the achievement of knowing. The support is now showing us the importance of another who now becomes your other self. The journey of creation proceed and grows as we start co-creating together and supporting each other. I cannot just read this and expect to know it, I have to live it. In simple view, the course for us to partner up with other individuals is so that we may fully balance and liberate in the future. We have to know the future and this is the only way. There is no individual part that has to do more than the other individual part, equal work help the other to know himself. If the union of two individual parts of the future is not completely balanced, struggle will emerge and the union will end. This union is meant to last eternity as existence exist and for as long as the union works. So all the lesson learnt earlier working on the future, respect, communication, trust and love will help the other know who they are and what they are capable of becoming. When self is expressing love, the other self is expressing love, when self is expressing trust, the other self is expressing trust, when self is communicating the other self is communicating and when self is show respect, the other self is showing respect. Every individual part who gets into the union of the future must have worked on himself to ensure that the future works, the lessons are an individual thing and the expression brings knowing to the other self.

The same scenario goes with conquering self, if I failed to conquer myself, I will not succeed in balancing with my other self in the future. Hate will not thrive in the union where the other self is expressing love, lust will not thrive in an environment where the other self is expressing respect, anger will not thrive where the other self is expressing trust and greed will not thrive in an environment where the other self is communicating openly. These are the lessons that nothing brings forth in the support of self, as receiving support does not mean that nothing do for you but the teachings that enlightens you on how to do for yourself. The truth about it is that we always have to remain true to ourselves as we balance and support each other in the future. Trying to figure out what the other self is in need of so that you can impress them always lead to frustration because you will never know. So I always do what I need to do and ensure that I do not interfere with the other's work. As they see me do what I need to do, they also do what they need to do because this is the bases of this union, mirroring each other so that we can know who we are. We are not going to imitate each other so that one may finally die in this union, that would lead to struggle and the fate of this union. Nothing will relieve an individual from struggle soon as he learns what it means to be completely himself. If the past fails to work in unison with a complementary past, the future will remain distant as selfishness only reigns in the past for a limited time.

Simply do nothing to others than learning who you are only so they may also learn who they are from you only. These lessons truly reveal why the ignorant put a blame on others when they break or fail things because they reflect the other self and that is just who they are. Their responsible sense of self has been hijacked by religion as god and the devil takes all the glory and leave the individual blind to the fact. The past support the future to a point where the support it is no longer possible even if the past wanted to continue support. So nothing takes over and the future realize its ability to co-create and work with its other self. It has always been a challenge to troubleshoot the need we feel to be with another when we use to be fine all by ourselves. The one who use to think that selfishness makes him stronger is surprised by the feeling of emptiness that can only be filled by another. This is because he stops to thinks and start to process his thoughts in line with natural creation. The view that the universal system is a bunch of things that are dual in nature is true to an extent, the past is self and it's other self and so is the future and the present. So, self and other self that created the past are individuals that render the view of duality valid. In the future, the self and other self are multiple because it's a past that balances with another past forming an entity. The elements of duality elevates to create and form elements of multidimensionality. Work is then able to have multiple valid outcomes in the future instead of this or that only.

The future creates with balance in its thought formation ensuring that it does not have to work multiple times because it is created by multiple children. If the future would argue its readiness when it must work to fully realize itself, it would never fulfil and the present would never exist.

Balancing the future

The future has found balance for itself and it is liberated from the past and nothing. Every time we seek liberation it feels like we need to liberate from oppression and submission dictated to us by others but true liberation comes through knowing only. The oppressors are not free as they do not know the beauty of liberation. Imagine working hard to ensure that other people work for you and fear you, this kind of work does not fulfil any of the natural creative principles. Such people live in perpetual struggle and they soon grace their fate here and elsewhere because they do not contribute in creation but only take and discourage progress. The realized future is bigger and better than the past, encouraging me to keep on trying new things because holding onto everything I know limits me. If I would choose to remain in the past when the world around me elevates to the future, I as well will struggle and meet my own end. As much as children learn from their parents, soon the tables turn and the parents must learn from their children so that they may very well assimilate into the future.

The one most visible thing that proves to us the future is better than the past is technology, future technology is much more efficient and has less to no negative impact on all the natural creative principles. Such creativity can only result from better offsprings and if the past was better than the future all great and perfect technologies would have long been created. The future would inherit great things from the past and continue without having to work because the past would have discovered and created everything. Clearly the latter would not be existence based on work and its end would always prevail. The only thing the future must inherit from the past is lessons, the past must properly train and prepare the future for its own discovery and growth. Everything good the past did, the future always do it better, so the future learns better, creates better and exist better. This is why future dreams are in the future that was created by inspiration from the past. The whole of creation cannot be concluded to be the view of a single individual part of it, every part of creation concludes the total knowing of creation. Case in point, the past's view is that every individual must fully realize himself if he is to be fully liberated in creation. This view is correct, however, it is only correct in the past. The future's view is that every individual must fully realize himself with another to be fully liberated. This view is also correct, however, it remains correct in the future. So in the future I have to first realize myself and then realize another if I am to experience freedom in this realm. The present's view is that every individual must fully realize himself with everything else in creation to be fully liberated. A being from the past cannot exist in the future, a being from the future can exist in the past and also exist in the future and a being from the present can exist everywhere. Equality must rely on work and not any other thing, work speaks for itself and it never lies because it is always a product of numbers.

Some teachings would make you believe that we have a right to everything but knowing will teach you that we must work for the knowing of everything. Rights are relevant and correctly used in certain campaigns and activities in life but must not be used to misguide everyone away from work. Liberation in the future relies on how well you respect, trust and love yourself and another, you will only know the extent of this respect, trust and love through the respect from another. The fourth factor is that of how well you communicate with yourself and another because effective communication is the trigger of all work and progress in creation. We already know by now that if you had opposed the four pillars of liberation, you would not have realized yourself or the future. It's time we look a bit deeper into the four pillars of liberation. Communicate precisely what need to happen, this communication is with yourself, there is no need to fear this. I take the communication as instruction and the next thing is to trust this instruction because it leads to work. Work out the instruction precisely as it was given because any second thoughts will lead to disruption and unnecessary struggle. Respect what you find from doing work trusting the instruction communicated. Love what you are, love what you have become because it is the outcome of your own work. After communicating effectively, trusting your work, respecting your discovery and loving who you are, you liberate.

When the past liberates, it communicates with the future sharing lessons on liberation and when the future liberates, it communicates with the present sharing lessons on liberation. When the present liberates, it lives eternally. A day lives forever, it is liberated and the universal system lives forever because it is liberated. Everything liberating in the present lives forever, whilst every other thing in the past and the future must work hard to get to the present and liberate to eternal life. True beauty is comfortable to observe and its sophistication is simple to understand. Fleeting beauty is only for the eye and very complex to understand because the deeper you follow its roots, only flaws protrude to the open until its disappointing truth is uncovered. These are the things that are created when the four pillars of liberation are ignored, creation then is based on greed, hate, lust and anger resulting to no progress at all but temporary satisfaction for the eye only. Imagine generations stuck in the unrealized past when the possibility to fully realize the past and the future is completely within them. Rather individuals keep to the knowing of their realized level of existence because knowing is one and always leads to work and eternal existence. The words I choose for this conversation with self is nothing because everything I am is limited in language and so I choose to silent my words and write nothing. Knowing myself and another is a common idea that I always heard long before I knew myself. I wonder if my parents were telling me that they know the future. Knowing another start and end with communication, trust, respect and love, this is how thought processes are revealed and this is how I learn and get to know myself. If this does not fulfil you, continue working until you get to a point of fulfilment because that is the only way you will know the future.

Its common human nature to dismiss information we do not understand and call it mystery because it is way above our level of comprehension. This human behavior is based on ignorance and it leads to complacency as the few who achieve knowing are deified. If I were to speak about what lies in the heart of another, I would be lying and if I were to speak about what the mind of another is processing at a time I would be lying. Knowing what other people think or feel has always been claims fascinating the ignorant as it is an activity of the ignorant. Such would require an individual to interfere with another's heart or mind and individual interference leads to unnecessary struggle. The journey of self-realization is based on self, then another and then everything. Even more so it is never based on interference but rather coherence with others and everything. Mine has been working and learning to achieve knowing, this allows me to take responsibility where I go wrong and to completely celebrate my fulfilment when I achieve. I need not convince others about myself and neither do I have to be convinced by others, actually I need not even convince anyone about nothing.

The full realization of the future is the beginning of communicating with the present, dispensing instruction about work to be done and lessons to be learnt.

Realizing the future

I now know now the benefit of being born and brought up under knowing, it's unlike being born under the ignorant past and have to find my own way to freedom. Under knowing, I received great support from the past and when the time came for me to be on my own and discover who I am, I was prepared. When we do not work, we justify our instability of mood swings and imbalance by saying that everything in existence must balance. Here I speak of love and hate, is it correct for someone to be consumed by hate because everything must balance? When we speak of two opposite things, imagine them in opposite positions and there only love can be balanced by love. If love is balanced by hate, it would mean that love and hate are equal in weight and this is not true. It would also mean that hate is vital in creation but this also is not true. This is the reason creation can only learn and realize itself through the opposite self, an exact match of self that is called the other self. If self and the other self would be different in weight, balance would not be realized and liberation would fail. So my other self is telling me exactly who I am, lest it would not be my other self, it would be someone else. So it's important to know that the four pillars of liberation are based on the key principles of realization, however, hate, greed, lust and anger are not vital in creation and therefore they are not opposite anything or opposed by anything.

Hate, greed, lust and anger simply creeps into sluggish individual to further their struggle until the end when communication, trust, respect and love are realized in liberation eternally. So positive and negative are merely positions carrying the same weight, if not, negative one and positive one would not know nothing. So all numbers know nothing until one exist with nothing. This is exactly what must happen in existence, everything know nothing until we realize one must exist with nothing. It is only after one knows how to exist with nothing that one can proceed and exist with another. So this is what my realized future says, to exist with nothing so that I may be able to exist with another and exist with everything, emphasizing the existence of the past, the future and the present. At this point the future communicates my next assignment and I am headed to work in the present to create a family for the elders and the children. It is common that as children we find our elder having already built a family for us, however, they have truthfully built that family for their elders. The children must always upgrade the family they find built previously so that such a family may not fall back to the future and then the past. If the children does not work, the family ceases to exist in the present and this is what some call falling. The elders and the children will then engage in rigorous acts trying to maintain their existence in the present but without vital work they do not prevail. So the children must hear and understand their instruction as it comes from themselves. This shows the elders that without the children we cannot live in the present, so our past must continue communicating with the future so that the future can communicate with the present. So the past and the future needs to exist in the present. Clearly this is why the past continuously communicates with the future for continuous work flow. This is the basic work buried within us that one must do to realize himself completely.

I relate the work as though it is completely manifest in our physical world, deliberately down playing its technical subtle state for better understanding. The work itself is manifest and not, it only depends on the individual part's position and level in life. Talking about one having the past, the future and the present within him, saying that within one is nothing, something and everything is my effort in painting a better picture about the work. This work is basically about one completely realizing himself within himself. One find that within himself he is nothing first, then become himself, then becomes someone else and then becomes everyone else. This is the journey of one in terms of knowing, it starts from within and then extend to the physical world he is manifest. One is the elders, the children and the family, he only extend himself creatively as such through knowing. So if one only knows himself in the past only, it become difficult for a creative extension within the physical world as the future and the present is impossible for him. So once work begins from within one must fully realize himself and completely liberate from within so that he may be able to extend his liberation to the physical world.

This is the potential that everyone has, it is the realization of the potential that nothing has. One first realize himself with nothing and only then can he realize himself with another and continue to realize himself with everything. I find that it is very challenging to have other people buy into your ideas from nothing because they already have thoughts from something that occupies them. Until they have their own thoughts from nothing, they will never know that you were not trying to have them buy into your thoughts. My thoughts are who I am and expressing them is how I live and if you don't like my thought processes you don't like me, not that it matters for you or me but it should be known and understood. Acting against things I do and trying to have me stop doing them is like a face to face proposal, you asking me to end my life. Then you may be wondering that in times where you act for the things I do and try to have me do more, what is it to me? In this case I have to clarify again that my life is realized from within, it does not rely on the thinking and feeling of another but its own course. Without the realization of self, one may continue to write songs even when he no longer has it within himself. To let another unfold his creation fluently requires one to know creation. What happens then when one lives independently with creation, do they still work and what do they work for. This answer is answered by one through eternity, as the realization of everything continues to happen. For example our planet knew us since day one but we must work to know the planet. Our solar system, galactic system and universal system knows us but we must work to know them.

The one most interesting view about the life we go through every day is that numbers are fully realized, we know them and are most familiar with the most basic ones. If numbers were not fully realized, they would one day disappear but that is not going to happen. If numbers were realized to a certain limit, everything would grow to that limit. So numbers are infinite and this is why the growth of the universe is never ending. For everything that comes to an end has a struggle of some kind, the basic creative principles of creation deals and conquer struggles. The work that creation does to conquer struggle, earns creation eternity. When a planet moves away from the planetary sun, it approaches the solar sun and this is why the struggle and vast darkness is worthy to face and conquer in light of the benefit. In the future I started to realize that without the present, I am not done working, however another realization of the cycle of creation started to reveal itself together with its endless nature. When I started out working, I would have argued that the universal system is finite and I would be correct but it would have been too early because now I realize that the universal system is finite with infinite growth capability. The one who says that the universe is infinite ushers an incomplete statement for processing.

The aptitude of the future really allows it to create the present for everything to thrive and if one becomes the deity of this present by deifying himself, he will want to act like nothing, support like nothing and work like nothing when he is something within everything. Such choice will derail one from continuing realizing himself with others.

-

Do I promise myself to work with nothing, with something and with everything?

The present

This is home to everything in existence but it remains an individual choice to work hard and remain objective to get home. When one reaches the present, he realizes himself in the present and those who are not yet here may be struggling in the past or are working in the future. This is when the cycles challenges one to work eternally because he realizes the need to work again to realize himself with himself and then to realize himself with others. This entire work done by one so far was for one to realize himself with nothing, work done at this level forms the bases of creation, it is the foundation and I view it as the first cycle in creation. It is the most inner cycle that realized its whole existence based on nothing, the existence of natural numbers is based on nothing because they all come from nothing. Everything in creation is supported by numbers because numbers are fully realized and I will repeat that if they were not, they would come to an end. So I have been working on the realization of myself with nothing and I have seen from the past to now that I possess potential to continue the journey of self-realization eternally. One cannot live alone and once one has completely realized himself with nothing, he soon need to realize himself with something and finally realize himself with everything.

In his journey to realize himself with himself, he also works to realize himself with another thereby helping the other to realize himself with nothing. When a realized being chooses to learn himself with you, he helps you to learn yourself with nothing. It would be a mistake to treat the realized being as a teacher when he is working with you to realize himself with you, however, during the work you gain the opportunity to learn from nothing. This leads to one working with everyone and everyone working with everyone leading to one realizing himself with everyone who has realized himself with everyone. The cycles leads to massive growth because every time, realization start from nothing to everything and this happening on different levels with one on one, one on everything and everything on everything leads to the creation of something new every time. So the growth of one is infinite because one grows with another and also grows with everyone, leading to everyone growing with everyone. This is what work does for one, it brings eternal growth through knowing. Now it is clear that inspiration from one to another is imparted when one works on his realization with another. If one desired to teach another how to work with nothing, one would not learn how to work with another and another would not learn how to work with nothing. It would simply be the beginning of the end because even this one would have failed to learn from nothing, his self-realization would have simply been the delusion of his mind. One continues to work with everything new he discovers applying the six basic principles, starting from the past, to the future and then the present. So it would be safe to say that through nothing, one brings everything to the present for eternal existence. How could people who are not fully realized manipulate numbers that are fully realized successfully, it is impossible lest the entire populace is swimming in a sea of delusion in which case awakening must be realized. Numbers support everything, currency for instant is the one most common way of exchanging good amongst people and we try to control it. There is no time in our existence where we can control or use money lest we remain delusional. We need to learn how to work with money and money will work with us in return for a more creative growth outcome. Everything that is fully realized in creation is attracted to work, so if you need to attract everything, just work on yourself first. The principles of self-realization are finite making the process finite but manifesting the realized self is limitless, infinite and eternal. I did clarify that I have limited words to express an unlimited lessons that comes from the silence within me and so I listen so that I may hear. One is only realized in the present and when I speak of one, I speak of a totally realized being in creation that is created by myself in the past, myself in the future and myself in the present. Three stages of creation dedicated to the realization of one because the potential of one is much better than that of myself in any creative stage.

For much better clarity, when an unrealized one is added to an unrealized one chaos result because unrealized ones should not be working together before realization. However, when a fully realized one works with a none realized one a realized one and an unrealized one result and this only happens when one is working on realizing itself with another, they do not add up. When a fully realized one works with a fully realized one, a fully realized two result, the beginning of everything working within everything. A fully realized one is everything and it is always a part of every other thing in existence. So I work so that I can be able to manifest myself as a growing individual. It is often simple to differentiate between a struggling individual and one who is not as they go through life in our world. Growth through creativity is one of the positive factors for those who are not struggling. Those who struggles always try to take from those who do not in many ways, they have not yet come to the need of creating with nothing. Changes happen but not as a mass spectacle, it is an individual thing. The individual who fully realize himself realizes a lot of new things, a complete rebirth, and a new world that gives him a new life. So why wait for someone else who promises you something when you can get everything by yourself? In the present everything is present and this is the only point that everything must realize. If you get to the present and find that you expected to realize something and it is not here, two possibilities exist, it is either working on its course or its journey ended before realizing everything. I imagine a family already, the elders and the children now living together in harmony. What could be exciting about the family setup, what are the benefits of having a family as opposed to being alone in the past or being a child in the future? Family has a formidable support structure and therefore it can manifest creation based on a complete support structure. So family guarantees progress because it is always here and its safety mechanism is completely secured. I am not talking common criminal activities that would be inflicted by another, I am not talking of wavering when the course ahead seem impossible. Things can only seem impossible, they all remain possible when one is fully realized and capable of complete support. Family represents oneness and unity, it is with the realization of family that one realizes that he is nothing. All the struggle, the past and the future was for one to finally realize himself as nothing. During the entire journey, one appeared to be other and then another and finally everything. Creation already did its complete part, teaching one the importance of working alone, working with other, working with another and working with everyone. The successful completion of these lessons leads to the graduation of one as a complete knowing individual. Only from here can one start to manifest his work alone, with other, with another and with everyone as he will. Learners do never take class examples and notes to implement them exactly in their life after school, however they take the concepts and proceed to working with them as they will. If all the lessons and all its examples were to be executed in manifesting one's life completely, one would never manifest because his liberation would not be true. Imagine a student in a music class taking every song that he practiced during his lessons to publish as his own work, he would not be recognized and therefore he would never live as a musician.

In creation all the lessons are real and true simply because you are being taught how to create real and true things. So speaking of the realization of family, it means now one has the full potential to realize his own family as he will know that family is everything. So the family that one is going to create includes everything in existence and this family will expand as one realizes himself with everything he creates in life.

Working the present

It is time to work with everyone and my final lessons are on how to work with everyone so that individual interference may be kept to natural levels. The past and the future is here to impart lessons learnt from nothing so that when the time comes, the present may be ready to work with nothing in liberating itself. The past was realized in a certain point during my work and the future in certain point during my work with help from the past, now both the past and the future are here in the present. The future bring everything together and hence the family is realized at this point here. Many people imagine family as the immediate biological family or maybe just those in their genealogy tree and if this was true then the present would not be the realization of everything. Creation is family all by itself, so realizing this level of family means realizing the highest level unity in creation. Genealogy trees and immediate biological families are a thing of the ignorant past, it is obsolete in the present because it promotes divisions. Understanding how a child was birthed in the future, even families' start small here at the level of the realized future and work to discover who they really are in the present. The present work gains lessons from both the future and the past about communication, trust, respect and love because this is the support of the present thought process.

When it comes to communication in the present, it is no longer effective communication from self only but effective communication from another. If I would be literal, I would say being a patient multilingual communicator earns you a space in the present. If I were to engage another person with instruction in my home language, the information would distort and the entire communication fail. However, failure at the creative level of work is never an option, so for effective communication with another, I would do everything necessary for it to be successful. The body has its own language, the mind and the voice so I learn all these languages to effectively communicate with everything here. Every time communication fulfils instruction and work begins. I now have to trust that the instruction was given correctly and the work will be done correctly. If for any reason effective communication is not fulfilled, trust will not enact and work will not start. I emphasize this because nothing makes no mistakes in his lessons, lest something interferes with the instruction because one is wavering. Work start and continue based on trust between two or many things in this level. This is the bases of family, the present cannot be realized if everyone and everything involved have no trust. For example the communication in the food chain of everything in life is based on trust, if the trust would break there, the prey would poison the carnivores and the herbs would poison the herbivores. The poisonous outcome can only happen if there was an interference in the food chain. In the present there are no victims, everything is playing its role as a vital part of everything. Imagine if there was a break in communication between rain and the planet citizens on the ground, contaminated rain would fall and destroy crops, people and animals. Work cannot proceed without trust amongst everyone involved.

Life has only two categories, its either you are working on yourself or you are manifesting your work through yourself. Spending a lifetime working for others means exactly that, you did not work on yourself and you did not manifest your work through yourself. A question might be, why do I work on myself? The answer is so that you can raise yourself to the level of your work. Working with others is manifesting your work through yourself but working for others is negligence of self. Imagine a child waking up in the morning to go and do chore by the next door neighbor's house, the next door neighbor will serve him with breakfast and lunch as he works, he can also give him super if he stays that long. The child's parents will fight this situation until the child finds it within himself to do chores at home and eat at home. The neighbor can do things to impress the child but not everything and the child's parents will always be there for the child whether he goes to the neighbor or not.

Working in the present I realize that the past has always been here with me, it is the foundation for everything I do here. It works for me to remain in the present whilst I learn from the future ensuring that information flow is not interrupted. In existence the past does not blame the future and the present does not blame the past, existence would not be if the past and the present were playing the blame game. When it's time to work, work is done now, so if you live a life of wavering and postponing when it comes to work, you must truly wonder if you are truly here. The past and the future pass on information to the present because the present is self-sufficient, it is fully realized. This has always been my goal in life even way before I knew this, I was not fulfilled doing work for others and doing work with others before I could completely realize myself. Now I proceed exactly in the lane where I continuously challenge myself and fulfil myself over and over again. I would have a challenge in my journey if I wanted to know about someone else because I would have to deal with endless interference. However, everything I ever needed to know is about me, upon fully realizing myself as one, I continue to realize myself with another one and further on to realize myself with everyone. Writing is one of the ways I use to communicate with myself during my journey of self-realization, simply meaning during the creation of myself. I refer to myself in many ways because that is the relevant reference at the time and I wonder if I made my lines cohere as it is the requirement of the linear I come from. If my work is not linear, then I succeeded in reaching the dynamic one I so much pursued for my liberation, where the past, the future and the present all create at once. If another person read this book with me, I continue my success in working with another because I promise you, more work will be required reading this book more like the work that was required to write it. So when I realize myself with another, another will realize himself with nothing in his own unique way. This again clarifies the issue of levels in creation, meaning individuals must never compete but work and learn so that they may know who they are and understand where they are.

So if I read this work with many other people, I will realize myself with them as they realize themselves with nothing. These people will work with each other from their own self-realization work and continue to realize themselves with each other. It is unfortunate that we choose careers in life without much knowledge of who we are and as soon as we hit the road on self-realization we change careers. Working on the present helps us to remain here, not to make decisions based on who we want to be but on who we really are. Lessons from the past and the future guide the present to conquer self so that hate, anger, greed and lust may be conquered. I have so far relied on myself and every communication I transmit for myself is my complete guide on my quest. In creation I found order in a very dynamic way without corruption or compromise and this led to my work thriving on these values.

Discovering the present

Now this discovery comes with completely new things as it is already basing itself in the unfoldment of creation beyond this level of creating from nothing. How is one going to create with others soon as he start to manifest all these lessons? In the past people would manifest themselves without the realization of one in mind and many leadership systems emerged. All previous leadership systems involved every person but not everything and benefited a few people, I commit these words and the pages to my lessons and no other people's lessons. So I focus on the leadership of one, it always base its work on complete realization without any attempt on teaching, or taking from any other in any way.

- * First, one cannot lead any other before successfully leading himself into complete realization based on work, self-discovery, support from nothing and liberation.
- * Secondly, one must fully realize himself based on communication, trust, respect and love, this is important because the leadership of one must be free of hate, anger, greed and lust.
- * Thirdly, one must work with another for mutual benefit, one works with another because he is working on realizing himself with another and another works with one because he needs to completely realize himself with nothing. Growth and expansion is served.
- * Fourthly, one must work with everything for mutual benefit, one works with everything because he is working on realizing himself with everything and everything works with one because it first needs to realize itself with one.

The leadership of one leads everything to eternity because eventually everything will be able to work with everything. Time will not be wasted on the slave and master kind of ruling because this is paralyzing everything from working and therefore leads everything to an untimely ending. The socialist, communist and capitalist can now move towards the common objective of realizing themselves first and let go of attempting to keep everyone in the past. How could one lead others without successfully leading himself to complete self-realization? The world need not go around searching for a fully realized one to take the reigns but everyone in the world must take the responsibility of daring the journey of self-realization completely. Peace, prosperity and happiness can only be achieved in this way and we are going to learn the true potential of human beings and everything else in our world. Now that I have discovered the present I can speak of our world. Upon learning about the leadership of one, I asked myself if I have to spread the word and have people learn what I just learnt but no I don't have to. I have to work on the leadership of one completely without bothering any other about it because it is the only way that it may be effective for me. Others will realize the leadership of one from nothing as I realize myself with them and true liberation will reign in our world.

Everything will taking care of its own weight leading everyone to a liberal and completely safe balanced world. When one works with another, it's always challenging until one realizes himself with the other and the other realize himself with nothing. Ignorant people have their own way of doing things and liberal people have their own way. The risk and work pursued by the liberal seem very stupid to the ignorant, however, the liberal has the responsibility to know and understand that the ignorant couldn't have done it any other way. So knowing why things happen the way they happen leaves one with the responsibility of letting them to themselves. An ignorant person does not understand why one leaves a well-paying nine to five job to suffer pursuing uncertain opportunities and this is fair because it is not for the ignorant to understand such. It is different when coming to a liberal person, they know and understand that the ignorant must do their part at their level until they cannot do it anymore. This is the way of elevation, a grade ten pupil cannot be forced to remain in grade nine after having been found competent to proceed. Most systems in our world acknowledge that creation is based on elevation, this only fails when some people deliberately create categories based on the love of power and greed.

During the process of self-realization, progress may be hindered by the failure to learn a lesson. For instant, when the ignorant displays themselves as such, I must know and understand that it is their place without responding with anger. If I do respond with anger, then I fail a lesson in communication because this is how the ignorant do things, then I will have to engage myself and conquer anger. Knowing helps and it should not be misinterpreted because it is based on work. A high school pupil must know high school stuff but cannot be held responsible or judged for not knowing university stuff. Creation is who I am, one is creation, meaning who I am is the outcome of my complete self-realization journey. Manifestation is what I am, what I am is what I become and everything I become is a complete part of who I am. Creation is the answer to who am I and manifestation is the answer to what am I. Realizing myself with everything means, if I am not this, I am that and this expression is what I become answering what am I. So, who am I can only be answered in one way through creation, what am I can be answered in many ways through manifestation. You cannot separate the civil engineer from his bridge, he designed it expressing what he has become. The musician is exactly the music he makes, hence music is measure and criticized based on growth and progress. Everything manifested must portray everything creation portrays, work to discover it and support it to balance, talk to it, trust it, respect it and love it because this is exactly what you will receive from your manifestation. Failure to manifest in this way means you are ignorantly manifesting what you are because you do not know who you are. Your manifestation has no foundation and therefore it will be based on greed maybe lust or anger and be hateful. Such manifestation only lead to struggle and frustration, its end is always guaranteed.

The discovery of the present prepares one for the discovery of what he is, the liberty to become the thoughts he process. Technology is what beings in the world have become as they answer the question of what am I. The manifestation of one is happening in the present answering the question of where am I. this is why I said manifestation answers everything else without who am I. knowing what I am gives me the position of where am I, including where do I come from and where am I going. I found that I come from creation and I am going to creation because every time I realize myself, I realize myself with nothing. Nothing created me and nothing keeps on calling me to realize myself further. I deal with myself in the first second and third person because I realize myself as me, you and everything. So I is one and only those who complete their self-realization journey know I.

It is very interesting because as children we play and wrestle with the question of what am

I without a full comprehension of who we are. Now as a fully aware person, I is my reference, you and us and I do not need a mirror to refer to myself as you or us. The mirror is good for those who need it for this kind of conversation and convincing.

Supporting the present

It's interesting how hard we work when we are faced with the end of something that we like because we fight to protect it and finally learn new things to liberate it. Some relations thrive even when spiced with a little bit of anger and lust, justified as a bit of balance, 'good and bad'. Soon as we realize that the relationship will end because of the anger and lust, we try by all means to save it and we learn about communication and trust. We finally learn these things from nothing if we fail to learn from the past and the future and this is the most challenging way of learning something. This shows us that we choose to fight for certain things and leave others to end either because of the lack of knowing or knowing. Regrets always follows the choices made from the lack of knowing and fulfilment and liberation follows the choices made from knowing. Imagine if the human race was to be quizzed about the first and second world war, some soldiers would say, 'I actually did not know...' and some would say, 'only if I knew, I would not sign up'. Those who conspired and benefited the most from the war would also answer ignorantly. Those who know did not partake in the war to benefit one opponent, they worked for the benefit of the world and their answer would be, 'the world was in a different level at the time and now it's elevated'.

I tell my truth even at the expense of the most wonderful relationships in business or romance because if I fail to do so, the lies will frustrate me. If my truth was based on a lower level yesterday than I am today, then my truth improves, I grow and my knowing is enhanced. Yesterday I wrote a poem about my world observing everything from the beach and tomorrow I write observing everything from space, does this make the poem I wrote yesterday false? If so then our ancestors would not be true, yesterday would be a lie making tomorrow impossible and today non-existent. Communication involves listening and talking and the two is always happening at the same time, if not the communication fails. Feelings, the body and the voice are completely capable of both. When nothing instructs a man to work, a man works on what he sees when nothing was instructing the man to work on who he is. For instance, a man in the past receives the instruction to work, he sees the future ahead of him and so he works very hard to get to the future, either way the instruction is being fulfilled. Everyone must work on the past first to get to the future, this is the only way to work on oneself, starting from where we are. So when a man gets to the future, he realizes I now know my past and I can learn from it, so he starts cherishing the knowing from his past. Nothing instructs the man to work again and the man looks ahead but ahead of him is the present this time, so he works on getting there. Upon reaching the present, he realizes that he knows his future and his past and he cherishes this knowing and he learns from it. Nothing knows that this man lives on his past and his future, so he need to work again to realize who he really is and nothing instructs the man to work again.

The man gets confused and frustrates because he cannot see anything ahead of him, all he sees ahead of him is the manifestation of his past and the future. So he starts working hard to manifest his past and his future. Upon the manifestation of his past and his future, he feels another sigh of relief and realize that he lives in the present because there is nothing behind him and nothing in front of him. In the same way that nothing is supporting this work in the present, it supports every work, the past and the future lest the man would be lost to his ignorant ending. So the best way to start work is following yourself, focusing exactly on what you see with utter trust to completely know it one hundred percent. Lately graduates come out of tertiary institution and complain about the lack of jobs, whilst this is true, there is always something ahead of them and they must work on it to know something and move on until they realize who they are. The same scenario holds to the people who have no education at all including everyone with some education, work on what is ahead of you, you will soon realize that you worked on yourself. The creative principles says you cannot work on another or know another without knowing yourself and man believes that he can work on another first. So creation accepts work as work because it knows who did the work and where he is, so the lessons of what he did and where he did it accrues to him. Creation cannot be cheated and it does not cheat and now you realize why you started working on manifestation way before you manifested anything. This is because a man works on what he sees, hence the famous suggestions that if you can see it you can be it.

However, many people work and end up wondering that after working so much the future remains in front of me, why am I not reaching or becoming it? Well, based on the creative principles this is because you are not done with the past and based on what you can see, it's because you haven't reached it. More work will be required for both views to be fulfilled correctly. So the reason we do not create backwards is because when we receive the instruction to work, nothing is behind us and when we get to the future and the present we know what is behind us. Wavering and futility would be concentrating on the things you already know, the hindrance to growth and progress. Now imagine how challenging it may be to work on manifestation before even knowing the past, many unfortunate things will happen to everything you manifest until you go to other people for help. Creation is therefore simple in this way, trust the instruction to do work and work on what you see because it helps reveal who you are and where you are. During work respect everything you find through work because it is all you, no matter how small or big it may be. Work on it until you balance it because you are going to love the completely balanced version of who you are. During the support level, nothing already loves who you are becoming and only when you liberate will you know your true nature and really love who you are. The time has come for me to let the past be, let the future be and let the present be.

The issue is not about what is in the past, what is in the future or what is in the present because everything is there. The people I love and many other things I enjoyed holding onto because of the sweet memories and some because of being highly protective but all these things must grow too. I cannot be the hindrance to them because that will also hinder my personal way forward. Becoming one means only that, how could I fight for oneness with another when I am not one with myself and they are not one with themselves? I have to make a choice, either I continue working for complete liberation or I hold onto my old self and with all the work and knowing I gained along the way, I choose to completely know myself. I'd rather be alone with knowing than ignorant with someone else. My feelings and my body agrees with me and so I confirm it with my voice because I know that the other choice is not vital either for me or everything else I care for. In order for me to completely be, I have to let others be and I let them with a free heart. Everything mine will remain throughout till I manifest and celebrate my creation.

Even though I can see clearly and completely know what to do next for myself and the level of interference is at its lowest, the interference is the strongest. I consider it be detachment, to be one with everything I have to completely detach from everything. Only then will I be able to move to the level of working with something as one so that I can realize that thing. The creative principles do not agree with me working with something whilst I am still nothing, only nothing does that. This is a lonesome journey but because of our nature of working on what we can see ahead of us, many try to create themselves with others and it never happens. Right now, I am focused on manifesting whilst I am naturally completing my support level in the present. I found that I cannot rely on another to effectively communicate, trust, respect or love me here, all this must come from me. The other will one day be able to communicate, trust, respect and love himself when their time comes.

Balancing the present

Having dealt with detachments, here I completely balance and liberate as one viewing the nourishment of creation through into manifestation. From nothing, creation exhales life and this life goes on to complete realization that guarantees eternal independency. Thereafter, creation inhales and view the life created from itself, by itself and with itself. Now the created life exhales to further realize its own creation within creation, however it does so completely supported by creation because it is a complete portion of creation. This process of exhaling and inhaling is also called the ebb and flow process, this is how creation extend itself into existence. Anything that ceases to exhale and inhale ceases to exist and we already know why some things stops breathing. It's difficult for the process to continue successfully when life is out of balance, this is the reason we work to maintain complete vital balance. When creation exhales, one comes into life and works hard towards his own realization. In his first level, its work only and he discovers himself in the second level, he gains support in the third level, so he is able to work and discover himself again so that he can balance his first discovery and his second discovery. This is the discovery of self and the other self, he balances on the fourth level. In level five, he goes deep into the Centre of creation, more like he argues and query the benefits of his hard work. His journey into the Centre of creation pays off because he comes out with nothing to work on level six, for this entire level, he works, discover himself, gain support and balance with total support from nothing.

The purpose for level six is for one to know the comfort and liberation of working and living with total support from nothing. It's more like he is promised this kind of support forever if he continues his work until he is fulfilled with nothing. Then he proceeds to level seven where he works and discover himself in the same level. Good enough effort by himself, trying to achieve what he achieved working with nothing at level six. He continues to level eight where he gains complete support for his work and he works even much harder to discover himself again to balance. Here after, he gets into level nine, where he balances himself, then level ten is where one realizes the promised eternal presence of nothing, the birth of the famous number ten and the beginning of oneness. Here one is completely independent as he is fulfilled with nothing, the level six promise is completely fulfilled at level ten. Now one can live all by himself with a complete power to create, from here I refer to it as manifestation. Then from here one will be exhaling another one into existence and here birthing continues. Creation teaches us how to create and then let us to it, the bases of infinite knowing and the expansion of life eternally. This is the reason why one must learn the principles of creation from nothing because another will share what works for him, nothing shares everything that works for creation. When one fulfils himself with another, the other must fulfil himself with nothing first. It would be foolish and futile for another to try fulfilling himself with one, he must first become one to fulfil himself with one. Balancing in the present is complete liberation as creation is completely revealed. I now know that throughout my work I always have nothing to support me and it's the best feeling I could have ever imagined. Some individuals went to school, when their lessons got tougher, they did not leave but built permanent residents there. This happened so often that the entire school became a private residential place that their children had to live there and attend school elsewhere. This is the basis of chaos in the learning system of creation, individuals who try school must go as far as they can and then graduate from the school to manifest their lessons in life. The other scenario is where good student are promised better education and a rewarding life, when they are going to be used for the benefit of someone else. These things disturb the breathing of creation and one fails to completely realize himself. Unnatural interference affects not only the one interfering but everything else around the world bringing an immature ending. So one must work and learn until he arrives at the level where he can live with nothing forever because here there is no unnatural interference or immature ending but only life eternal. This is the point where sound has completely transformed to light, the instruction has become fulfilled and only freedom reign going forward. I view this in the most simplest way, when your parents says go wash the dishes, they will be happy to know that you do wash the dishes every time they tells you to do so. However, they will never get off your back until you are able to wash the dishes because you saw the need to do so.

The most interesting part in creation is that you will choose what you need to accomplish, if you choose to be an engineer, you will have to engineer you own work. It's unlike everyday school where people learn engineering from other people's work. In university you qualify as an engineer for as long as you achieve the set pass mark, if its fifty percent then you are good to.

However in creation you will need one hundred percent to pass and be qualified as an engineer, lest your engineering work will not function. Imagine a software engineer that has his software fifty percent coded correctly, he practically does not have a software. So we actually completely liberate when we get to the point where we can do our work completely when it is needed without having to be told that we must do so. Everything we use in our daily lives comes from one who was able to find himself with nothing and worked to manifest something. I found that all communications do not make much sense until worked out to finer details and this is because I did not know. If you stand up to do something that was never done before, you will receive help from nothing, so do not complain that you have nothing. Be grateful because everything comes from nothing and you are now face to face with nothing, just apply yourself and stay committed to your course till the end. The future is the Centre of existence, no wonder everyone worry about their future when they should be working on it. The future is the promise of better things but not the place where better things are and with a lack of knowing much more focus is on the promise. The present however, is a place where promises are fulfilled and I find it working for me to be here where I do not just long for fulfilment but be fulfilled. Mistakes, embarrassment and judgment are a more profound part of the journey, it is only the failure to rise above all these things over and over again that usher an early end to the journey.

Individuals do not need to be protected from creation but because of ignorance, there is now a need for individuals to protect themselves against other individuals. Synthetic interference has been growing to a point where individuals are not interested in working but to be saved from some impending hell on the world. I did not find a single instant where one is responsible for another's work even when they work as a unit. It's always one realizing himself with the other and the other realizing himself with nothing. So working with another must always be based on their own realization and yours, not just a selfish fleeting benefit. How could the very creation that realizes itself through us gamble with its own realization? Creation is only after the highest attainment of order in the present time, then how could it sabotage itself.

The unrealized that meets their fate early in the past are not under attack or killed by creation, they just render themselves obsolete and extinct by merely failing to adhere to the basic principles of creation. Only the truth prevails against all circumstances and this is how creation thrives through eons and eons of creating and expanding itself. Now that the present is balanced, life is bound to thrive and manifest in ways beyond the past and the future.

Realizing the present

I can now breathe because it really matters to me not because a window of fresh air has been open for a moment. I became nothing working for my total freedom, tired of wondering if things are really going well with me. Total liberation is more than everything I ever imagined it to be, knowing everything and yet be free from it all. The possibilities of life are limitless before me, every vital thing I ever initiated in the past and the future is now realized within me and mine to manifest. I have fulfilled the instruction that had me hopping from place to place trying to do this and that without clearly understanding what I should have been doing. I got to a point where I was personally disgusted by the fact that I could not get myself together, however, I also could not continue living like everything was okay. So I went deeper and deeper within to the point where I found nothing within me. Total realization means I can work, support and liberate my manifestation based on the six principle of self-realization like I was taught by nothing. Only nothing creates and it creates unity, the realization of one. One manifests and it manifest eternity considered by the creation of everything.

Creating something is a total expression of the creator, if the creation is vital and eternal then we know that the creator is one but if the creation is struggling and fleeting, we know then that the creator needs to work on himself to one. Vital eternal creation is based on one, one continue to realize itself as many times as it creates something new. There should never be a time where one idolize his creation or demand idolization from his creation because that leads to the beginning of the end. The latter leads to dependency, no more working, loss of balance and lack knowing. Therefore, eternity forfeit and a new series of struggle begins and the end comes. The pages of history will hold on to the knowing of this one but for a limited time as nothings knows everything all the times. The pain of the fallen one comes from the lack of balance because he knows but chose ignorance anyway. The principles of creation never change and only one who fell from manifestation and rose that high again know what it takes to completely heal one from the wounds of falling. So clearly work is eternal because even the conquered hate, greed, lust and anger will rise up to the stage soon as the opportunity present itself. So the importance of knowing the principles of self-realization is for one to adhere completely to them because one knows the consequences of none adherence. So knowing creation is knowing everything because with this knowing you can create anything. Know how to live and let live, know how to create with others for your realization as you let them do it for their realization and know how to create with everyone for your realization as you let everything to its realization. So knowing comes with responsibilities because when things are not going right, I must work on making them right, even when things are going alright, I must work on keeping them alright. The human race is thriving on a beautiful environment, earth, the knowing ones work for this environment to remain beautiful so that the races may thrive forever. The end is the same for everything, the end of work, the end of knowing, the end of life, one end triggers another. The normal saying is that one knows everything and it is true because everything is based on creation and one knows creation.

I found the preamble to life for myself, where nothing realize itself as one. The need for nothing to realize itself as one is the bases to all progress because it is the limitless seed of creation. So nothing being manifest as one is the first level of manifestation and is the complete bases of creation because every other manifestation is based on this one. When one realize itself with another that is the second stage of manifestation and the third stage of manifestation is when one realize itself with everything. Eternity is based on one who is completely manifested like nothing and this one manifest another and everything like nothing until everything manifest everything as nothing. This is what total realization is, it does not fall because it has nothing to fall back on. If you have yourself to fall back on, you will be victimized by yourself based on your weaknesses such as your fleeting desires and not by any other.

Nothing desires complete realization, so falling back on complete realization is not falling back but progress. So manifestation happens in the present and every other thing before here is work in progress, where the processing of thoughts triumph over thinking and logic. Logically I was supposed to have done well according to society's expectations, go to school, get a job, gain experience, get a promotion and lead a reasonably functional family to a better future. Thoughts are processed in the present leading to outcomes of the present, whilst thinking and logic is based in the future and the past. In thinking and logic, separation and divisions are found based on the outcome of different great thinkers. In the present, oneness is found based on the thought processing of one as realized by nothing through everything. For example, many people are searching for their soul mates because they believe that they will have a better chance at happiness once they meet them. So in religion people search through dreams and visions, whilst those who are not religious search through dating efforts using the trial and error technique. The knowing ones, work on themselves because they know that their happiness is completely dependent on them. This is why total self-realization is based on independency and when two independent people engage romantically there is no room for ignorance because they both know the truth. The fact that many people get married before they completely realize themselves poses a challenge to the marriage when an individual part engages himself to work on self-realization. Starting with the things that we should finish with is caused by ignorance. It is ignorance because knowing is buried deep within us and we ignore its call to work. There has never been a single moment in existence where nothing was not inviting us to the present, we chose to engage on other things before engaging on ourselves when it should be the other way around.

Happiness is the sum of communication, trust, respect and love, until you communicate effectively with yourself, trust, respect and love yourself, you will never know happiness. So happiness is in the present, all I had to do was work to get here. Many different people work towards many different goals in life and that is good because every other individual working goal leads to the present. If for example your goal was to get a fulfilling job in life, all fulfilling jobs are in the present. So either way, you must fully realize yourself to be fulfilled by any and everything you do in life. A fully realized soccer player will manage to fulfil himself working in the different levels of the soccer profession or choose to branch into a completely new career. It's clear therefore that we must work on our complete self-realization first before going onto the many other things we need to create in this world. Doing this fully understanding that it's an individual choice and therefore the individual approval is sufficient. The hope for judgment day and heaven is based on a certain level of perfection that bares complete happiness elsewhere but here. I however found that happiness is here and not elsewhere.

Are all the different kinds of fights in the world based on total awareness first, the fight against poverty, the fight against terminal ailments, and the fight against racism? Shouldn't people pay total attention on working for total self-realization? How do you engage in a fight where you don't even know the right weapons to use? The true weapon towards complete liberation is work and everyone needs to be free from poverty, ailments, racism and so forth. Not a single person can give another any kind of freedom, where such cases exist, the freedom is meaningless and subject to all kinds of interference.

I found myself to be one with nothing, one with something and one with everything I know.

Manifestation

Could any single individual know all the different kind of things manifested in existence? My response would be no but one knows the creation of every single manifestation in existence. So knowing everything is knowing creation, the bases of all manifested things in life. This is the point where one starts expressing himself exactly the same way nothing expressed him and his truth will be known by everything in existence. If one is partial towards politics, then his manifestation will be driven along those line and a great politician will be expressed by one. If one is partial towards religion, science or philosophy, such will be his manifestation and a great religious leaders, scientist or philosopher will manifest. When one is partial to many things then so will his manifestation show. At the level of manifestation some manifest the past, some the future and one manifest the present. The manifestation of the past to the future is growth and the manifestation of the present is liberation. Growing includes all aspects of work because lessons and support must lead to the liberation of this manifested work. Validating the fact that people should become one and manifest themselves as such. However even the levels of manifestation are different, one manifesting by himself means he has realized himself once only, one manifesting himself with another one has realized himself twice and one manifesting himself with everything has realized himself many times.

I now imagine one who lives within a family of ones, this family will be manifested as a very vital and dynamic family based on the manifestation expressed by the ones, whether alone or as a unit of unity. This manifested family will impact the manifestation of the community, the country and the world. It should be noted that even those manifesting the past or the future contribute to the total manifestation of the family, community, country and the world. However, a small challenge always exist where they do not see things in the same light. This is supposed to be so because the past does not know the future and the future does not know the present, so views are bound to be different. Everyone will resolve to their way when facing conflict, the past will unleash war with the intention of eliminating what is viewed as opposition. The future will seek advise from those who know better and the present will work with everyone to resolve the conflict. The latter scenario interfere with progress and result in necessary ending of the irrelevant so that the truth may prevail. Natural interference does not lead to the end, it is only the orchestrated interference that lead to the end of lies and struggle is teaching us to never manifest ourselves as lies. Until the past elevates to a knowing past, the future elevates to a knowing future and the present elevates to a knowing present will all manifestation be here and viewed by everyone in the same light. One manifest things that helps everyone to work, express and remain here for longer without interfering with any other in existence. So total realization allows everyone to have total consideration of everything as they work on manifestation. How will my work affect humans, animals, trees and the entire natural Habitat is the responsible question to ask? This is the point where one uses the principles to become this and that because he knows that the only way for him continue realizing himself is through work.

The universal system is limitless because of endless manifestation, so why should we wait for alien help if we have the same abilities with alien beings. It's always easier to pass the bug when you don't know and avoid responsibility, we are equally capable to go out and work with alien beings for their own realization as we realize ourselves with them. As one manifest, time and space become no barriers for advancement and deep space explorations because one knows that the only barrier is ignorance. However, I imagine that space and time exist as barriers for the safety of the sluggish individuals who think along a straight line. Those who would walk into a shop without money and attempt to get out with groceries are well deserving of barriers as they are a threat to their own progress. Imagine the one who processed and gave us sugar out of sugar cane, the one who looked inside timber and saw paper, the one who came up with a washing machine, the one who built a car, a plane and so forth. This is the continuous realization of one to manifest the vastness of this universal system we live in. A debate may arise at this point saying, 'if all these technologies came from one they would not be detrimental to our environment because one knows that the environment must not be interfered with'. The latter is true but remember that the past and the future are manifesting themselves in distinguished ways.

So to overcome the threat faced by our environment through manifestation, the past and the future must continue working and the present must realize itself with them continuously to improve the present situation. The ultimate challenge is when those in the past only do work to manifest riches, they tend to overly protect their manifestation irrespective of the impact it has on the natural environment. It then become difficult for one to realize himself with them as they struggle to see any other better manifestation than the one they have. They are also consumed by the love of power, something they use riches to gain. I have already spoken to length about the natural creative phenomenon that deals with struggling individuals, however, working with them helps everyone as we tend to realize ourselves with them as they realize one. Clearly everything in creation is in good order, not even the survival of fish or a spider is left to chance, and those that work will thrive the longest. For a very long time I did not know what was special about me but now I know that work is what makes me special in creation and it makes me special to creation. I care about how I manifest as one without interfering with any other's manifestation only because this is the only way I achieve my total happiness with everyone. School is one of the most important things that must manifest right for the benefit of the learner and it makes me wonder why it is not based on the principles of creation.

School should teach like nothing because they are dealing with children who must eventually face nothing to become one. School should be based on the lessons of communication, trust, respect, love and liberation and further emphasize guidance on the feeling of need, work, discoveries, support and balance and realisation. This is the responsibility of the elders to the children so that thriving families may be manifested. Mathematics, science, philosophy, art, politics and every other subject of interest are based on the principles of creation. So if we are not teaching at school based on these principles what are we aiming to manifest with our education? So the influence that the past have on the manifestation of all these things must be clearly understood and respected knowing that they must work learn and elevate to let loose their love of power. For all these manifestations there is a need to be supported and balanced to fully know the past and the future, then be manifested in the present. I have spoken about the fear of separation but one knows that it can never be separated and therefore it does not harbor fear.

People are scared to lose their jobs, cars, houses, families, power and every other thing they don't understand exactly how they came to achieve. The fact is people shall lose all these things because they did not base their work on the creative principles that manifest eternity. Actually people will also lose their physical bodies and their existence because of fear, so everyone need to conquer fear to create eternal life.

Manifestation of one with another

This is where one start manifesting his uniqueness with another being without interfering with their lessons. Many have referred to one at this level as teacher, master, and father and so forth because one displays his knowing with another being and because one is learning how to work with another without interfering with their journey. One is not here to save this being he his manifesting himself with this being and this being is not here to serve one. Both are working together to realize themselves, the other being is working to realize himself as one and one is working to realize himself with another being. Unchecked interference may lead this union astray, where one is now served by another being. If one does not let this being to himself, he will not have much to learn from him and his quest to realize himself with this being will be unsuccessful. In the same tone, if this being does not let one to himself, he will not learn from one and his quest to realize himself as one will be unsuccessful. So it's good to learn from those who are fully realized but it's not vital for anyone to teach because even the realized one must learn from this being they are manifesting with. This means, not every instruction must be broken down to its simplest characters because the one issuing the instruction will be partial towards his experience. When instruction is issued very well to ten people, it will yield ten different realization from these people. If someone had to interpret the instruction to ten people, none of these people would realize themselves from it.

If you are realizing yourself through dreams, an opinion from another will derail your interpretation of the dream. If you are realizing yourself through numbers, an opinion from another will derail your interpretation of the numbers. The dream is you talking to yourself and the numbers is you talking to yourself, so trust, and respect and love yourself enough if you need to realize yourself through your own instructions. Therefore, when you are working with another, learn from them, do not copy them because this will derail your realization and theirs. Manifesting with another includes material things, know who you are and the things you own will not control you. Your riches must not dictate your feelings, it should be your feelings that dictates the amount of riches you are going to manifest in life because your feeling are based on your needs. One succeeds to realize himself with nothing, he can therefore realize himself with anything he feels the need to realize himself with. I found that believing makes me wait much longer that knowing does for me. With knowing I work on manifestation, I do not wait for the unknown as lounging in the unknown may lead me to my demise without notice. A believer's existence end with hope because that is what they bought, a little bit of knowing would change a believer to a fighter, a fighter work and so they do not die. It is therefore irresponsible for one to start teaching and dispensing promises to individuals who would otherwise work and realize themselves as one. An individual who chooses to deify one during the union of realization is ignorant of his own journey and will not realize himself as one. However, when one and the individual remain focus on their personal communication, trust, respect and love, they liberate and start communicating effectively with each other, trust, and respect and love each other. In this way one helped another to realize himself as one and the other helped one to realize himself with another.

Blames and complaints are the expression people give when they normally do not know why things transpire the way they do. It gets so intense that people start blaming and complaining about their own lives because they lack informed understanding about the things they express. A person will never succeed in destroying or ending another person's life, except when given permission by the person being destroyed. Actually taking us back to the point that, people end their own lives because of ignorance. The self criticism that render your life invalid to be expressed are the things that one learns from you during the union of learning from each other. You learn about how to overcome yourself destructive ways from one, the way he deals with himself inspires you to try new things in your life and grow. It is useless to complaint when rail falls, when the sun is hot, when the snow falls or when a violent tornado hits our settlements. Those who know that these things happen, prepare and protect themselves accordingly and the ignorant suffer from impact. It's very important to know that it does not matter how hard we neglect and destroy our environment, we will not succeed in ending its existence because we are the one who will suffer for our ignorant actions.

Our environment knows how to handle itself and eliminate threats, it knows how to heal and thrust forward. So our ignorant behavior continues to render civilization obsolete as we are fascinated by our detrimental scientific toys that have the potential of blowing our world apart. Again, I ask myself who will suffer. I find that the ignorant will as they have no concept of the indestructible one that is everything, pieces of a physical world blown to bits is exactly that and life continues for the fully realized one. When one has learned how to work with another, they continue to total realization and the individual who just became one will also work with another individual until we get to the point where we are all one. When we all become one, it does not mean that we become a single super being, it means that we are all totally realized as one. We all acquired the complete knowing of who we are and are now using this knowing to manifest creation diversely, lest manifestation would come to an end when everyone is manifesting the same thing. Today manifest newly every time but it remains and it remains today, if today would manifest the same, it would simply be yesterday. The work done to become one that enlightens us to continue on the journey of one without interfering with another one. This is how balance is maintained, lest we would be watching colliding stars every night in the sky. It is not because some super being has created them perfectly in place not to interfere with each other, it is because they worked long enough to know interference is destructive for themselves. So they communicate effectively, trust, respect and love each other. However, they are continuously at work and that alone makes lessons from the stars impeccable. Knowing does not limit us to the physical, it is the bridge that connects one to the unlimited eternal world filled with possibilities that we learn from so that we can manifest a healthy world.

I process my thoughts along the lines of being one with the rivers, meaning as I have realized myself as one, I must not interfere with the oneness of the river. A river must flow because that's how it breathe life into itself. I must only collect the quantity of water that is going to serve me without having to capture the river's life into misery. So it is immaterial whether one shares his breakthrough with the other individual or not but the individual must never use one's breakthrough as his own. Using someone else's breakthrough derails growth like giving away your entire earnings from work with someone who does not work at all. Everyone must achieve their own breakthrough that leads to total realization and liberation. So if we work together, you will know what I find but that should only serve as inspiration for you to find your own things.

Manifestation of one with everyone

Becoming one with myself helps me work from the unseen to manifest things into the physical where I have to work with everyone to realize them. Being at work with everyone seems like an impossible mission but I do not see it that way because I simply have to continue my self-realization work without interfering with other people's work. At the level of everything, I work with ignorant beings, fully realized beings and beings who successfully realized themselves working with others. So I know how it's like to be ignorant and also how it's like to elevate into knowing. I do not desire to stand in the way of anyone whether doing work or lazing around for everyone rises up when their time comes and if they fail to rise up, they disappear with their ending. This is why I do not act based on beliefs because beliefs will have me interfering and promising other people milk and honey. Knowing guides me to lessons that lead me to forever, whether such lessons come from the ignorant or other knowing individuals it's not important. So should we teach others how to elevate to one? No, but we can share with others how we elevate ourselves every time through work.

It's clear now why motivating others is only good for a specific project but not the people involved, until such a time where the motivational speaker inspires the people without promises. Employers motivates employees with a long list of incentives but they still do not become fit to create and run their own companies from nothing. However, these employees will work long hours, including weekends and holidays without complaining just to fulfil the employer's project plans. Once an individual gets on his own journey of self-realization, the environment created by the employer will not fulfil this individual and without much knowledge, he will try other employers until he knows it's no longer possible to serve under employment privileges. It's only at this point where an individual becomes nothing and works on his journey of self-realization and this work leads to unlimited expression of self. I do not need people to follow me to prove that what I am saying is true but I need people who are telling the truth for themselves because I will learn something from them. I do not need to work with people who are waiting for instruction from others to get the work done, I need those who take instructions from themselves. I however am able to work with the people who follow me and those who take instruction because I followed others and took instructions at some point in my life. Manifesting myself with everyone requires that I maintain my course of effective communication, trust my work, respect myself and love myself so that I can maintain my liberal state. In this way, I will communicate effectively with others, trust their work, respect and love them. I base my entire life on feelings, not expectations based on things I have no knowledge of so that every time I work, my actions are based on knowing. This is why I am the only one who knows my life path better than any other individual. I did not find a single point in my journey where I could simply download my destiny records in life or gifts for being a special person, so all I learn throughout is that work is rewarded with knowing and knowing is always expressed through the manifestation of one. I always imagined a world where everyone knows himself, in the past I would imagine this world to have everyone I know and love elevated. Now I know that for continuous growth, creation will always have the past, the future and the present. Being able to accumulate riches does not mean I am able to make people rich and wealthy, mine is to share my lessons and those who get the inspiration learn from themselves and elevate above poverty. It goes the same way with maintaining a healthy mind and a healthy body, it's not possible for me to teach other people how to stay healthy, I share my lessons to inspire and those inspired learn from themselves. Once I start teaching, I will be creating interference against the natural flow of creation because people will stop working and wait for my solutions, thereby leading everyone to a stagnant world guaranteed to end soon. When the business owner is ignorant and the potential employee has elevated himself to knowing, the relationship fail because this potential employee needs to work with the business owner for mutual benefit but the business owner wants the potential employee to work for them for maximum benefit.

I continue to work with other people for as long as I do not compromise my liberty and theirs, I do not need anyone to be my sub as much as I do not need to be a sub to anyone. For example, a parliamentary cabinet does not work for the president but must work with the president. The entire members of parliament do not work for the country, it works with the country. For as long as we have someone working for another, we will continue to have victims of poverty and ill health for when everybody knows how to work, everybody achieves liberation. Totally realized people are liberated from poverty and ill health, they are liberated from slavery and every other kind of submission. With a narrow view, it might have looked like the ultimate achievement to have a world without a world war but we can have a world without war at all. Political stability and religious progress is not the ultimate form of stable leadership the world will ever know. Political and religious leaders will find the need to work and lead themselves first before getting into the chain of leading others whilst they are still being led by others, creating a chain of struggles.

* Now I manifest myself with submissive political and religious leaders as much as I manifest myself with totally realized political and religious leaders.

* I manifest myself with homeless people and people who have enough room to host a village but keep it to themselves.

* I manifest myself with those who are suffering from ill health and healers.

* I manifest myself with teachers and their learners.

Realizing myself with everyone in these different and opposite categories proves that some are working and some are not but I cannot get people to work even if I can become the most successful inspirational speaker worldwide. People only start working once they feel the need to do so. I therefore choose to continue manifesting myself in as many ways as I feel the need to, without ever teaching anyone how to. Frakush Nakush, a journey from me to myself is manifest for myself expression and those who read with me may be inspired by the lessons I learn. I express lessons from deep within, here listed in chapters from nothing to the present. From the same deep level after working and learning from myself, I found that I can manifest my lessons with another and with everyone. Most people know that it is very challenging, to express feelings with words, more especially feeling that come from nothing, something I view as an effort of sharing my emptiness for my own understanding. If I do not do this, I would struggle for a longer period in my life even though I already have learnt the lessons to liberate myself. It is commonly called conversations with myself, it helps me as the writer because I needed to read it for my own progression in life.

Often people wake up with dreams and wonder what it means, with me its feelings that are creating my life experiences and even my dreams are based on my feelings. So far I have put down the preamble of the emptiness in my mind, something that I found from nothing.